WE NOMINATE

Donald Wilson McGowan, a resident of Lawrenceville and for nearly a half-century a dedicated servant of a not always grateful nation, who over the Labor Day Weekend observed his 66th birthday with his retirement from the United States Armed Forces. It was in the spring of 1916, shortly following his graduation from high school, that the New Jersey-born McGowan entered upon a military career which was to be culminated by his appointment in 1959 by President Eisenhower as chief of the National Guard Bureau, one of the key posts within the rambling confines of the Pentagon and a position subject to keenly sensitive political pressures.

Seldom in the history of New Jersey military organizations, a saga stretching back to the Civil War years of Princeton's Joseph Karge, has a National Guard "career" been more warmly acclaimed by the men with whom he served — or by those concerned with training the country's "reserve components." When the "ceremonial troops" passed in review this past Friday in Virginia, the assemblage included members of both Houses of Congress, representatives of the Federal Government's Executive Departments, and veterans of New Jersey's Essex Troop, the nucleus of General McGowan's World War II command in the European Theater of Operations, the 102d Armored Cavalry Regiment.

Some 47 years ago, for reasons not completely clear, McGowan's graduating class in the Orange, N. J., High School, prophesied that he would become a general within 10 years. The class was somewhat off in its calculations, because the process took just a bit longer. It was to be three decades before he became a brigadier general. As one observer has suggested: "If he had stayed around a year or so longer, he might have risen from the ranks to lieutenant general, the exalted rank which has been repeatedly proposed for the National Guard Bureau head."

Volunteering in 1916 for Company I of the 5th New Jersey Infantry, an outfit which was promptly mobilized for Federal Service during the Mexican Border incidents, McGowan initially had no conception of making "soldiering" a lifelong profession. However, in the early 1920's after he had been the 114th Infantry's sergeant major with the World War I A.E.F. and after meeting his wife, whose father was a Regular Army Instructor for the N. J. National Guard, he "signed on for the duration" and received his major general's stars in 1948, the year he assumed command of the State's 50th Armored Division.

The lone New Jersey colonel to command a New Jersey-based regiment in World War II, and now permanently "settling in" in his Eggerts Crossing Road home (two doors from the 50th Division's Artillery headquarters), McGowan is hired with a contagious enthusiasm for the Army that is reflected in some measure in his four sons' career interests. One, a graduate of the Military Academy, is stationed in Vietnam; another is on duty with the Army in Texas; the third is currently detailed to the N. J. National Guard; and the youngest, Duncan, is an undergraduate at Yale where he is enrolled in the R.O.T.C.

For meriting one of the highest accolades a "civilian soldier" can confer upon a "professional," "a soldier's soldier", for placing professional obligations far above the confining rim of practical politics; for distinguished, and unsung, service to his country; he is TOWN TOPICS's nominee as

This Is PRINCETON

SIGN OF SUMMER'S END: Though the official end of summer is not until September 23, lowering skies (seen from Springdale's first tee), earlier sunsets and the opening of schools all indicate that fall is almost here.

GOODBYE, SUMMER

Fair Thee Well. In Princeton, the livin' was easy, this 1963 summer, with a few muggy days to smudge the blue horizon a little bit, but nothing a man could call unpleasant for very long.

A gracious way to say "Goodbye, summer" is to visit a fair. Eat a final hotdog, stroll through the dust to the merry-go-round, listen to the shouts of boys and girls filtered through the afternoon sunlight and watch the long shadows that seem to come earlier these days.

Back to the '20's. A "Roaring Twenties" Street Fair will bring the bright lights to New Hope from Wednesday, September 11 through Saturday, September 14, with an official opening at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday fired by a "Roaring Twenties" parade.

How to capture the Roaring Twenties? New Hope will have a flag-pole sitter, a dance marathon, silent movies and a Follies which will star Odette herself.

The Logan Inn will become a speakeasy with membership cards, and anybody who wants to buy bootleg hooch will have to say "Joe sent me." (At least, that's what the publicity man says.)

On the closing night of the fair, there will be a drawing for prizes — a color television set, a fox-lined raincoat, an original Jean Halter painting — who knows what else?

The Roaring Twenties has advertised for used machine guns, 1920-style stills, gangster-style cars, plain and fancy 1920's dresses and volunteers for the marathon dance contest.

Want to sit on a flag-pole?

Come to Trenton. Now that all the trotters and the pacers and the square-dancers have gone home from the Flemington Agricultural Fair, the big one is the New Jersey State Fair in Trenton.

The Fair will open next Saturday, September 14 and will run for nine days and eight nights, ending on Sunday, September 22 in a roaring finish that will feature a 200-mile Big Car Classic auto race with world champion Indianapolis drivers.

For people who collect fairs, it's a nice change of pace from the Flemington pacers. For people who collect nostalgia, it's a chance to compare the 19th century grace of a trotter with the full-throttled drive of a fast modern car.

It will be, in part, a Tercen tenary Fair, previewing next year's big event, and Tercentenary exhibitors will take over one whole building at the Fair Grounds.

And Susie, Too Arthur Godfrey, Frank Fontaine, Napsey Russell and the Buffalo Bills are entertainers who are scheduled to appear at various times during the nine days.

"Little Susie," the paddle-wheeler that churned up the waters at the Flemington Fair, will be at the Trenton fairgrounds in 80,000 gallons of water, ready to take passengers for an old fashioned riverboat ride. And the Skyride, a kind of double Ferris wheel, will spin its magic for fairgoers who like to get their feet off the ground.

Wednesday, September 18 will be Ladies' Day, with special food exhibits and a free fashion show with prizes. Daddies and boys and girls will move in on the legalized games, back at the fair last year for the first time since 1957 and expected to be Greater Than Ever in '63.

Just to prove it's a fair, there will be four horse shows, two on each weekend, 111 exhibits and displays from General Electric, New Jersey Bell Telephone and a score of business firms and retail stores from all over the state.

The Fair grounds are between Nottingham Way and East State, with entrances on each street.

And to Hopewell Hopewell plans a "Community Day" for the residents and the neighbors on Saturday, September 14. Jaycees will be in charge, aided by 19 different community organizations.

Boy Scouts will start things going with a flag-raising ceremony at 10 a.m. on the grounds of the Hopewell Elementary School. Right after the opening, there will be a Baby Parade on East Prospect Street for anyone under the age of five. Two categories will participate: walkers and floaters. (Those riding floats) and prizes will be given to the prettiest, most amusing and most original costume in each category. Registration information from Mrs. George Drake, HO 6-0502).

Perhaps the most exciting event will be a ride-the-mower race over a quarter-mile track on the school grounds. Entrants must be over 16 and must bring their own mowers. (Blades removed, please: the lawn has enough troubles already.) Reel mowers pushed by hand enter at their own risk.

Cub Scouts will hold a Pet Show. Teen-agers will have a Canteen Dance (7:30 to 11) and the Senior Citizens will have an antique show. The grounds of the municipal building, site of the antiques show, will also provide a display area for an exhibit by the Woosamonsa Art Group. Those who visit the art show may have a charcoal portrait done by Tom Hart any time between 1 and 5 p.m.

A Pony Ride for Me. And not only children may ride the pony and or eat ice-cream. There will be free balloons (no age limit), cakes to buy and a gay and carefree block dance to cap it all at the end of the day.

Hopewell organizations taking part in the Community Day are the Fire Department, American Legion, Boy, Girl and Cub Scouts, PTA., Woman's Club, St. Michael's PTA, Jaycee-ettes, Presbyterian Synod Fund Committee, the League of Women Voters, DAR, Mercer Grange, Senior Citizens, 4-H Club, Soroptimist Club, The Woosamonsa Art Group and the Teenage Canteen.

Rambles to End. The last Iron Horse Rambles for ever and ever will be held this fall, one on Saturday, September 21 and two others later in the autumn. The Reading Railroad has announced sorrowfully that because of fewer and fewer passengers, more and more trouble finding enough coal and water en route, and smaller and smaller work crews trained in the operation of old steam engines, these Iron Horse Rambles have come to the end of the line.

On Saturday, September 21, a steam engine pulling a Reading Ramble will leave from West Trenton, puffing to Macungie, Pennsylvania, with a string of coaches. Here in Macungie, passengers will help to celebrate Pennsylvania Dutch Festival Day, with a traditional dinner and band concert, minstrel show and a water show if weather permits.

Information and tickets may be obtained from the Passenger Department, Reading Railroad, Philadelphia, 7, Pa.

And last week-end, on Labor Day, the traditional end of summer, the 50 members of Princeton Engine Company Number One gathered for their annual outing in Squatters' Grove. It may well have been thir 150th outing — or near that anyway; Engine Number One has been around for a long time.

All day long, from 10 until dusk, members and their guests (each one could bring two) enjoyed the camaraderie of a stag picnic, with steaming corn on the cob dripping with butter, hot steamed clams, hot-dogs, pork roll, hamburgers and enough beer and soda to keep the thirst down where it belongs.

Quoits is a tradition at these outings. Members sign up at the gate as they enter, and pairs are drawn from a hat. It's $10 for the winners, and of course, all the glory.

Some of the ambitious ones played volleyball, and there was softball, as usual, and perhaps best of all the reunion of old friends who hadn't seen each other all year.

And at Squatters' Grove and the State Fair, on Main Street in New Hope and the school grounds in Hopewell, the chance to eat that final hot-dog, the one with all the mustard and the pickle, to notice for the first time that some leaves are gold already, and to say "Goodbye, summer!"

BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF THE HAWK SCHOOL: New elementary school on 20-acre site in West Windsor Township will be open and ready for the fall term this Thursday. Named the Maurice H. Hawk School in honor of the man who was secretary of the board of education for 44 years, the building contains 14 classrooms, a library, kindergarten, offices and all-purpose room. Construction of the school on Clarksville Road was completed in less than a year at a cost of $659,000.

TRINITY PLANS PUBLIC

Suggestions Asked. Alternative plans for the restoration of fire-ravaged Trinity Church went on display this week. Duplicate exhibits are placed in the Parish House and at All Saints' Chapel for consideration until September 13.

Plan A: pegged at $550,000 net, calls for building the nave toward Stockton Street, seating 562 worshipers. A free-standing alter would be built at the Mercer Street end. The Lady Chapel and hapistry would be enlarged.

Plan B: estimated at $225,000, essentially rebuilds the church as it was before the fire.

Common to both plans are choir and robing rooms, and four clerical offices. Both cost figures include $100,000 indebtedness on All Saints' Chapel. The church has on hand $200,000 towards construction which is taken into consideration in the net figures above.

A closed suggestion box is placed with the exhibit, so that members may express opinions as to the alternatives. Parishioners are also invited by the wardens, Richard K. Paynter Jr. and Hugh D. Wise Jr., to comment directly to either the Parish Advisory Committee or to the vestry's Reconstruction Committee.

Each plan includes a drawing which shows how the completed building would relate to existing structures, landscaping and paved areas. A separate chart shows the projected costs.

Following the exhibition, and after a special meeting of the Advisory Committee, the Reconstruction Committee will meet to consider parish views. The Committee will then make a formal recommendation to the vestry.

NEW SCHOOL HEAD

In Dutch Neck. Mrs. Blair McClenachan has been named by the trustees of the Dutch Neck Cooperative Nursery School as head teacher in charge of the entire teaching program. Mrs. McClenachan, a graduate of Syracuse University, has had several years of experience in nursery - school teaching.

An alumna of Brigham Young University, Mrs. Bruce Gibbs, will be associated with Mrs. McClenachan as teacher-in-charge of the 4-year old group. The latter will direct the 3 year olds.

The first general membership meeting of the Dutch Neck Cooperative Nursery School is scheduled for the evening of September at 8:00 at the school.

THE "Y" SAYS "COME"

Registration Soon. The YWCA is going off the deep end this fall with swimming class for women which is so advanced that the pre requisite is the senior life saving course.

Those who are less in earnest may choose a women's synchronized swim club which will meet Wednesdays from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. (baby sitting available). Both women and girls may join an evening synchronized swim club from 7-9 p.m. Mondays. Water ballet skills will be in the curriculum for both.

The mother toddler swim classes, always popular at the "Y", will be held again, for both beginning and advanced students, although how a toddler can be advanced is a problem one leaves to the "Y".

An advanced swimming class for girls who have passed their Junior Life Saving test is being offered this semester and there will be two diving classes for girls on Monday and Wednesday afternoons at 3:30.

For the first time, the Y will offer classes in advanced sailing. Like the beginners' sailing classes, they will be held rain or shine. Indoor sports may choose bowling Tuesday morning at 10, for both beginners and the more experienced.

The Y-Nauts synchronized swim club will synchronize on Saturdays from 12:30 to 2:30.

Round-Up

With the Giants-Eagles exhibition game scheduled for Palmer Stadium this Saturday afternoon, hopes are high that there will be a few changes from last year's contest . . . (1) Fewer bees; (2) No fighting among spectators, (3) No traffic jams.

Number of bees (stings, among other things, gave the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad its busiest day ever last year) depends on number of cokes, other sweet drinks lugged into the stadium to attract them . . . Spectator fighting depends usually on amount of alcohol ingested before and during game (last year, major brannigan involved a guy who swung at another, missed, clobbered his own wife instead) . . . Traffic jams, which last year backed cars up so badly that many fans were still coming in long after the second quarter had started, were caused by the fact that parking lot attendants near the stadium quit their jobs in time to see the kickoff, say the State police . . . The consequent tie-up was frightful.

Two letters (see page 32) commend last week's civil rights demonstration in Washington, one of them taking sharp exception to recent examples of housing discrimination in Princeton.

Police report they have received several more complaints recently of that unique example of cowardly vulgarity — anonymous phone calls. They say further that this unhappy hobby of the warped is a continuous thing here in Princeton.

What to do about it? Police urge that people receiving such calls notify them of both time and date of first anonymous call and each subsequent call.

Don't wait until fourth or fifth call to notify the police.

If a person receives several calls, he should ask police chief for assistance . . . Police can then get the telephone monitored to help apprehend the caller.

Want to be a rural mail carrier? Applications for such a job will be accepted at the Princeton post office until September 17, says a note from the Civil Service Commission. Requirements include: written test, residence within the delivery area of the Princeton office for a year prior to September 17 . . . Also, applicants must have reached 18, but there is no maximum age limit.

Anyone over 70, however, may be considered only for temporary renewable appointments of a year at a time.

Meeting of research and industry division of the Chamber of Commerce set for next Monday, 12:15 at the Nassau Inn. Guests: Albert Hauptli, vice-chairman of the Montgomery Township Committee; Nicholas W. Mauti, chairman, and Floyd Walters, of the South Brunswick Industrial Commission.

Some smoke, no fire at Morven, Governor Hughes' home, last Thursday . . . Apparently caused by overheated wiring system. Police Sgt. Anderson and Ptl. Jackson of the Borough force investigated, got one fire engine to "stand by." Caretaker was called and electricity was shut off. Hughes family was away at the time . . . According to Borough Police Chief McCrohan, State police run a check on Morven almost hourly whenever the Governor and his family are away.

OUR WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENT: Linda Blattenberger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. William Blattenberger, 49 Randall Road, prepares her account of the march on Washington for TOWN TOPICS. Linda, a 1963 graduate of Princeton High School, spent five weeks this summer studying Spanish at the Interamerican University, Saltillo, Mexico. She will enter Swarthmore this month.

"I was proud to have gone"

(Editor's Note: Linda Blattenberger was asked by TOWN TOPICS to report the March on Washington from the viewpoint of a young person. More than a dozen teenagers went on the March from Princeton and environs, and it had a strong appeal for young idealists. Miss Blattenberger's account appears below.)

Too busy wondering what the day had in store as we left for Washington before dawn on the 28th, some members of our bus half-jokingly requested tranquillizers when our well-equipped captains offered dramamine.

Just back from Mexico, I was perhaps more in the dark than my companions. The Thursday before, I had called home for permission to delay my return and couldn't have been more surprised to hear:

"But you're all signed up to march on Washington on Wednesday."

"To WHAT?"

Dad couldn't believe I hadn't heard about it.

"It looks as though it's going to be the biggest human rights demonstration in history . . ."

Persuaded that the march would be worth leaving early, I informed my somewhat amazed Mexican friends that I was going home to march on Washington, arrived Monday, and spent Tuesday catching up on sleep instead of the news.

For us the march started not in Washington, but as soon as we hit the New Jersey Turnpike. It's hard to describe the thrill it was to see a long line of buses out in front of us and following behind. I kept thinking, "We're not even there yet. If it's like this here, what's it going to be like in Washington?"

Whenever we passed another busload, we'd look for a sign saying what town or organization they were representing, and regardless of what it said, we'd get all the more elated to know they were with us, too. In Washington, lots of Negroes were outside their homes waving, and we felt so wonderfully welcome I wanted to dance instead of march.

I admit I was thrilled to see Peter, Paul, and Mary, Joan Baez, and Marion Anderson, and to know that so many famous people had given their backing to the march, but I couldn't help thinking the marchers had not come to be entertained. Somehow it seemed they should have done less looking and listening and more participating.

Maybe there could have been more marching or group singing, but a few words from the leaders of the march and representatives of large groups would have sufficed, for the most significant aspect of the day was the mere presence of so many people.

One especially big moment came when the number present was announced, and it struck me that one of every 900 citizens from the entire country had come. Everyone was jubilant.

Some reporters have said the march was strictly of Negroes, for Negroes. On occasion a Negro speaker would direct his talk to the Negroes, saying, for example, ". . . and we want our right to vote!" Then everyone would applaud, and I would get an overwhelming feeling of the Negroes' impatience for action.

Nevertheless, I didn't feel out of place as a white person. The main reason for each person's presence was to be counted as favoring federal action for "Jobs and Freedom." If the march was to influence the government, it was important that citizens from all groups participated.

Besides, wasn't the symbol of the march a white hand clasped in friendship with a black one? A genuine end of racial barriers is as much a white concern as a Negro one.

We were tired and subdued on the way home, but also happy things had gone so well, hopeful some real good might result from the demonstration, and anxious to see it on T.V. I, for one, was proud to have gone to Washington.

THERE GOES ONE NOW! "I can resist anything," said Oscar Wilde, "except temptation." And so it is for most of us. The temptation hardest to resist for Ralph Perna (center) is, not unexpectedly, girls. Restraining Ralph are Princeton High schoolmates Larry Groft (left) and Charlie Goeke. For the temptation they find hardest to resist, see below.

Question of the Week

Question: What temptation do you find hardest to resist?

Where asked: Around town.

Joseph Sweeney, 54 Cedar Lane, freshman, Notre Dame High School: I find whenever I go into a department store like Bamberger's, or a delicatessen or an amusement park, I always find it hard to stop buying things until I run out of money. The more I buy, it seems, the more I want.

Jeffrey Billie, 294 Mt. Lucas Road, sophomore, Notre Dame High School: To eat — even though I don't look it.

Bruce Campbell, 105 Leigh Avenue, 8th grader, Valley Road School: Going into the ice box with dirty hands.

Debbie Hobler, 295 Mercer Road, sophomore, Miss Fine's School: Being a disk jockey on WHWH.

Hope Rose, 263 Mercer Road, sophomore, Miss Fine's School: Hardest to resist of all; Foods on the fattening side.

Frank Maddalon, 286 Alexander Street, plumber apprentice: Money. Whenever anybody offers me money, I take it. They don't have to ask twice.

Shelagh McAndrew, 235 Edgerstoune Road, junior, Shipley School, Bryn Mawr, Pa.: Riding on motorcycles. I absolutely adore them.

Russ Mina, Griggstown, 8th grader, Franklin High School: Girls, especially Carol. She really sends me. I really like her. She likes me too. Too early to go steady? I've been going steady since I was six.

Pat Costello, 51 Aiken Avenue, 5th grader, Nassau Street School: Beating up my brother.

Gina Webb, 8 Hamilton Avenue, 5th grader, Nassau Street School: Smashing my piano at times. I don't like to practice.

Larry Groft, 345 Franklin Avenue, PHS student: Money. I could use a bundle right now.

Ralph Perna, 56 Tee-AR Place, sophomore, PHS: Girls! Girls, Girls. Bring 'em on!

Charlie Goeke, 34 Morgan Place, senior, PHS: Picking up and going fresh-water fishing.

Houston Webber, 195 Birch Avenue, 8th grader, Valley Road School: Riding a bike on the sidewalk where I'm not supposed to. They've got so many laws around here now that I can't keep up with them all.

Miss Dianne Gilbertson, Menasha, Wis., student, Wisconsin State College: Villager blouses.

Christpher "Toby" Roberts, 6 Edgehill Street, 5th grader, Nassau Street School: To always steal bread from the bread box. I try to prevent it but it is my hardest temptation. I don't go too often but every time I do I get about four slices.

Glenn Johnson, Griggstown, 7th grader, Franklin School: Hot rods. I'd like to drive one if I could but my mother won't let me.

Linda Macauley, 188 N. Harrison Street, sophomore, PHS: Seeing a cute sailor and not having to turn the other way.

Darcy Crane, 94 Maclean Circle, junior, PHS: Eating just for something to do.

Bonnie Crane, 94 Maclean Circle, 8th grader, Valley Road School: Going into coffee houses. We usually make our rounds almost every day.

Lawrence Benson, Jr., Province Line Road, freshman, Wilbraham Academy, Mass.: The temptation to fix a Harrington & Richards 12 gauge shotgun which my father tells me isn't worth repairing. I have a gun collection and I would like every one to be in working order.

Jeanie Stahl, 548 Stockton

READY TO JUMP

Right into Class. The curriculum this fall at all female seminaries consists of geometry classes studying the "A" line, physical fitness exercises built around the jumper and the usual pursuit of the classics, especially Oxonian ones with a button-down declension.

Landau's is the place at the moment. We began, during a recent tour of the store, with the shirts and blouses because you have to begin somewhere, and there is so much it's hard to decide where.

Gabey and Van Heusen are the brands, in almost every style and fabric you can imagine. Solids like deep wine and navy and chocolate are on the shelves this year, along with blue, grey red or sage green stripes.

We liked a deeply printed Oxford cloth with a dark "linen" background and big fall flowers. Shirts have button-down collars, club collars, roll-up sleeves and infinite variety. Price range: $5-$6.

Under a shirt, you might wear a cotton knit turtle neck ($2.98 and $3.98) in a range of colors like navy, tomato red, black and so on. Instead of a blouse, slip on a sweater over your turtle-neck, choosing from Landau's vast collection of wools, including a crew-neck slip on with four buttons, styled with collar or with V-neck, too, at $5.98.

Cardigans in the classic style are $7.98, all wool. If wool makes you squirm, you might prefer one of the Shetland-style orlons, in almost as many colors as the wools. These are $5.98.

Well, you can still buy a straight skirt, of course, but it's the A-line and the gore that are big for '63. A gently "A"-ing grey herringbone tweed is a fine place to start. Go on to a deep green gored skirt, so dark in hue that it will "go with everything."

Madras wraps will take you through those warm fall days, and wool wraps will see you through the snow. Some are plaid, some are tweed, some are solid. One glowing yellow gold wool wrap is lined with a yellow-toned plaid to make a serviceable reversible. Skirt sizes are 5-15 and 6-18, and you undoubtedly fit in there somewhere.

One of the most useful things to pack for college would be a basic wool suit for $17.98, with little squared-off jacket edged with grosgrain and topped with club collar. We saw it in a pleasing bright red. Another, this one in corduroy, is a soft grey-green, again with cropped jacket. Double-breasted buttons in antique brass gleam softly against the green. It's $12.98.

Your below-zero coat could be the corduroy car coat in olive green lined with orlon pile in great horizontal bands of red, white and olive. (Powder blue has red, white and blue, tan has dark brown, tan and white). Storm Play is the coat house for Landau.

That Sherpa fleece that looks like lamb's wool has been used to line a suede cloth coat with an unusual leather string belt that goes through brass rings instead of belt loops. The collar is wide, like a big triangle when it's left open.

Jumpers are wool flannel in solids and tweeds, and one has a sassy A-shape with flare and a kick front pleat. We like the bright red. Maybe you prefer the grey herringbone.

Under it all Landau has a Lilured Seampruf slip at $3, Maidenform bras and girdles and warm pajamas for cold feet.

I NEED A PEN

For Writing Big Checks. What with all the talk about back-to-school, we decided to investigate a few scholarly accessories at La Vake's jewelry store the other day and finally found the ballpoint pen we have been looking for. It's 14-karat gold, $52.50. Other desk supplies we noted in our 29-cent notebook include a maple-leaf bookmark for $4.50 — sterling, of course — a sterling pencil sharpener for $8.50 and a cheaper ball-point pen for $8. Tiffany produces these, as if you didn't know.

La Vake is particularly proud these days of a charming little grandmother clock, five and one-half feet tall, designed like the York County clocks of the early 19th century. It has been made so that all the wood grain is vertical, adding an illusion of height to the little clock.

There is a quarter-hour westminster chime and the softest, gentlest tick-tock. "Lord, through this hour, be Thou our guide" is the inscription on the chased metal face. Price: $325.

LaVake also has a clock for moderns, this one a battery clock in simple brass design, made for a desk. It's $70, runs on a flashlight battery.

For your fall costume, the jewelry shop suggests tie-

NEED A PLACE TO PARK? TRY PARK PLACE: Although the parking yard on Park Place (also easily accessible from Vandeventer Avenue opposite the Garden Theater) has been open for many weeks now, few people seem to know where it is and even fewer seem to use it. When this picture was taken, in the early afternoon of a week-day, only 15 cars were parked in the 78-car lot. We thought it would never be necessary to run a commercial for a Princeton municipal parking lot, but this is one, suggested by Borough Councilman Ralph D. Hulit. (Staff Photo)

News Of The THEATRES

GARDEN

The Caretakers (through Tuesday). This film, on the subject of mental illness, is melodramatic. But then it's difficult to see just how a movie on such a clearly sensitive subject could turn out to be anything but. You can't expect a "David and Lisa" treatment very often.

After "Caretakers" was previewed by the United States Senate a few months ago, producer Hall Bartlett's film, to cite a letter to Mr. Bartlett from Lister Hill, chairman of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare, "contributed to creating the very favorable climate and presenting the challenge that brought the victory in the passage of the Mental Health and Mental Retardation Act by an overwhelming vote." A wordy accolade, for sure, but an impressive one.

Obviously, "Caretakers" was not made for the single purpose of swaying legislative opinion. It was made to draw at the boxoffice, and it was made from a pretty terrible book which must have sold, in paperback, something like a hundred billion copies. Hence the melodrama, lots of it.

Right from the opening, when Polly Bergen suddenly explodes onto the stage of a movie theater and goes shrieklingly wild in front of the audience, you can tell what you're in for. A screamer; not a quiet, objective documentary.

Placed in a state mental institution (who's to say if it's "typical" or not?), Miss Bergen soon becomes the subject of a psychotherapeutic tug-of-war between staff psychiatrist Robert Stack and head nurse Joan Crawford. The reason for the tug: Stack favors group therapy and other newer methods for helping the emotionally disturbed. Crawford thinks that tough discipline is the only "cure."

While the particular debate is one unlikely to occur in any hospital, mental or otherwise, it undoubtedly does occur frequently among the uninformed "on the outside." If the Stack-Crawford feud helps to educate some of the very many who still think and talk in terms of "crazy people" and of patients in state hospitals as "inmates," it will have achieved its purpose.

One critic, who gave "Caretakers" the back of his hand, said that the film was "about 25 years behind developments in psychotherapy." That may well be, but the fact is that an awful lot of state hospitals and private institutions and doctors in this country probably are too. And as for much of the public, "25 years behind" is a generous underestimate.

"Caretakers" was not intended to be, nor can it be, classified as a pleasant movie. It might be criticized by some as perhaps superficial and ineptly-handled, maybe too showy and tawdry.

But it does accomplish one undeniably important objective: it educates. The quote above from Senator Hill's letter proves that.

PLAYHOUSE AND PRINCE

The Thrill of It All (now showing) might have been more accurately called "The Shrill of It All." A 99 and 44/100's per cent pure soap opera, it floats in a tubful of bathos, one of those situation comedies which H'wood calls an "hilarious laff riot."

But, soapy (and corny) though it may be, it is funny. Definitely.

It details, among other minutiae, what is surely the fanciest premature delivery ever — an obstetrical horror, perhaps, but a movie maker's delight. Arlene Francis, on maternity leave from "What's My Line?", produces an offspring in the back seat of a Rolls-Royce which is stuck in a New York traffic jam.

The gynecological John Gilpin arrives on horseback in time to assist at the accouchement, uses a copy of the bulldog edition of "The New York Times" (why not "The Wall Street Journal"?) as a receiving blanket, then swaddles the infant in a mink lap robe. The doctor is James Garner, who lives with his wife, Doris Day, and two thoroughly objectionable children in Hollywood's whimsically erroneous idea of a Manhattan suburb.

Despite the presence of a live-in housekeeper, Doris is a frenetic do-it-yourself wife. She over-chores herself needlessly with bed-making, clothes-washing, and pulping out oceans of tomato ketchup in the basement.

Through a series of thoroughly contrived coincidences, Doris gets an $80,000 contract to promote Happy Soap on television. The story also implausibly places her doctor husband as obstetrician-in-waiting to the soap king's ostensibly barren wife of 20 years. Complicated? Wow.

All this and more enstardpie comedy, too. In appreciation for her hucksterism, the soap people put a swimming pool for Doris in her backyard, right where the driveway used to be.

That night, when Doctor

. . . SO SUPPOSE I WANNA BE THE STATUE OF LIBERTY?: Barbara Barrie is holding the torch and Polly Bergen is trying to get it from her as one of "The Caretakers" watches from an uninflammable distance. At the Garden.

how SMALL does your dollar look?

After all you've heard about the shrinking dollar, it is still the surest medium of exchange. And regardless of what anyone says, it is still good to have.

Your income dollar pays for life's necessities—it pays your taxes and it keeps your personal business solvent . . . but only a part of the money you receive is yours to keep. Only a fraction of the cash that travels through your hands is yours and yours alone.

You can manage your money best by regularly depositing a part of your earnings in a Princeton Bank personal savings account. You can be prepared for a "rainy day" when it comes.

Saving money regularly pays two ways. You are paid to lend us your money, in the form of interest. AND—you save 10% or more when you buy for cash, by not having to pay for borrowing some one else's money.

The magic key to independence is SAVING—at the Princeton Bank office closest to you.

STEADY NOW, JAMES: Doris Day and James Garner are currently chasing each other around in "The Thrill of It All" at both the Prince and the Playhouse.

Garner comes home in his convertible, (bet you've guessed it already) he sploshes into the pool while a conveniently nearby, off-camera band oom-pahs a bit of sinking-of-the Titanic music. Laff riot, just like we said.

All of this slightly spavined, but nonetheless amusing, horseplay will please the young. It will also delight those who rate Lawrence Welk's troupe as the country's finest orchestral group and Mitch Miller's chorus as the world's most ethereal choir.

It should also amuse anyone else who has an appreciation of slapstick. And who hasn't?

Maxine Lampert, 474 Rosedale Road, 5th grader, Johnson Park School: Whenever I see a ballet, I want to go right up on the stage and dance, too. Also, whenever I see a horse, I want to ride him. I love horses.

Molly Jones, Columbus Boychoir School, 5th grader, Johnson Park School: To go on TV and become a big star.

Earl Ownes, Yardville, student, Trenton State: The temptation to say "no." I can't say no when someone asks me for help. I lost seven teeth by not being able to say no.

Julie Ellis, 126 Clover Lane, 6th grader, Community Park School: To buy a comic book. I have hundreds of them.

Ann Bardwell, 65 Dodds Lane, 6th grader, Community Park School: Spending money on candy, going places—everything.

Red Cross and YMCA Senior Life Saving classes will be scheduled from October 4 to December 13 and prospective members should sign up during registration days. The class will meet Friday evenings from 6.30 to 8.30 p.m. for 11 sessions.

But Can You Cook? A cooking teacher who has studied at the Cordon Bleu, Mrs. Eileen Redman, will show how to make crepes Suzettes and shashlik at the gourmet cooking class scheduled for Wednesday evenings from 8-10 p.m.

French conversation, with or without de Gaulle, will cover current events as reported in Parisian newspapers and periodicals, according to the announcement — in English — concerning an advanced French class conducted by Mrs. B. K. Pulliam. "Emphasis," says Mrs. Pulliam, "Will be on clear, grammatical speech."

A special class in guitar will show students how to play traditional Southern Old Time music and Blue Grass songs. The instructor will be Mrs. Michael Seeger, who may or may not be related to Pete. Class sessions will be held Monday evenings from 8-9 30, September 18 through November 20.

For young girls, the YWCA will offer classes in arts and crafts for grades one through four; "Baton" for grades four through six, and such specialties of the house as guitar marionettes, marionette play production, oil painting (grade six through high school) a music workshop for the very youngest, and the suavities of ballroom dancing for six through eighth grade. (Boys AND girls in this one)

For pre-school children, over one year of age, the Y will provide supervised baby-sitting care Monday through Friday mornings from 9 30-11 30 and Monday and Wednesday afternoons from 12.30 to 3. The service is available to mothers who are either serving as volunteers or participating in a Y program.

WHO IS A CHRISTIAN?

Is a man an American citizen just because he claims to be?

Or is a man a General in the United States Army simply because he says so?

Should a man who claims to be a Doctor of Medicine be respected as such purely on the basis of his claim?

Does a man's claim to be a Rotarian make him one? Ridiculous questions, you say? You are right.

These are foolish questions because all recognize that it takes more – much more – than one's personal claim to make him an American citizen or a United States Army general or a medical doctor or a member of the Rotary Club. Fulfillment of certain standards, which involve definite and specific obligations, determines who is an American or a general or a doctor or a Rotarian.

The principle of employing standards is accepted universally except in religion. Strangely, it is only in religion that men have come to feel that standards are meaningless and may vary according to a man's wishes.

Take the question "Who is a Christian?", for example. Since there are so many variations among the doctrines that men advance in the name of Christianity, it has almost come to pass that the only definition that many would accept is this: "A Christian is one who says he is a Christian."

While Christendom may endorse this broad, tolerant definition of a Christian, Jesus would not. He said: "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven" (Matthew 7:21). Simply calling upon Christ Jesus as Lord does not make one a Christian. Jesus also asked: "Why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" (Luke 6:46).

Christ's standard, and it alone, determines whether one is truly a Christian. One may have many Christian ideals and concepts, and one may do many Christian deeds but he still may not be a Christian in the New Testament sense of the term. Three fundamental principles constitute the determinants for making one a Christian.

A CHRISTIAN IS ONE WHO BELIEVES SOMETHING - NOT JUST ANYTHING, BUT ONE WHO BELIEVES IN THE DIVINITY OF CHRIST.

Jesus stated this requirement clearly: "For if ye believe not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins" (John 8:24). Christ made it plain that men must believe that he is the Messiah, the only begotten and divine Son of God. A man may believe truly in Christ's goodness and his great character and still not believe that necessary to keep him from dying in his sins. A Christian, then, believes that Christ is the divine Son of God; one who does not believe this is not truly a Christian - according to the standard of Christ.

A CHRISTIAN IS ONE WHO DOES SOMETHING NOT JUST ANYTHING, BUT ONE WHO DOES THE WILL OF GOD.

That which one does in order to become a Christian is the will of God. The will of God which one does in becoming a Christian is revealed in the gospel (2 Thessalonians 1:7-9). The gospel is something to be obeyed, not just believed (Hebrews 5:8, 9). A Christian is one who has complied with the terms of the gospel by obeying "from the heart that form of doctrine" (Romans 6:17). A Christian, then, is one who does the will of God as revealed in the gospel; one who does not do the will of God as revealed in the gospel is not truly a Christian – according to the standard of Christ.

A CHRISTIAN IS ONE WHO ABIDES IN A RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD – NOT JUST ANY RELATIONSHIP, BUT ONE WHO ABIDES IN A DEFINITE AND SPECIFIC RELATIONSHIP MADE POSSIBLE BY CHRIST.

Apart from this relationship there is no approach to the Heavenly Father (John 14:6). One enters this specific relationship when he enters Christ (2 Corinthians 5:17), and one enters Christ in baptism (Romans 6:3-5; Galatians 3:27). One must abide faithfully in this relationship, walking "in the light" (1 John 1:7), unto death (Revelation 2:10). A Christian, then, is one who abides in this specific relationship with God; one who does not abide in this specific relationship is not truly a Christian according to the standard of Christ.

Christianity is not something vague, nor philosophically difficult, nor theologically mysterious. One becomes a Christian by believing something definite, doing something definite, and abiding in a definite relationship with God. In no other way can we be truly Christians.

Let us be clear and firm in our definition, for the original standard was set by Christ himself.

lacks or lapel pins that are single quarter-inch capital initials ($4 each). Ladies can wear them as scatter pins, making up a monogram or a whole name, and men of course, can use them on a tie.

FOR BRIDE OR SCHOLAR

Edith Provides for All. A splendid addition to any autumn bride's trousseau would be the white Grecian gown and peignoir now at Edith's on Chambers Street. Cut long and very full, the gown is classically simple with narrow white satin tie under a high bosom, and very deep U-neck front and back. The peignoir is even fuller, with a neckline that matches the gown's and long, tight tapering sleeves that extend to the wrist.

Sirens Need not Apply

Old-fashioned, feminine and demure are the words that characterize lingerie assembled by Edith for her fall collection of gowns and robes.

A white waltz gown, the most youthful thing in the world, has the palest blue lace insertion circling the wide elbow sleeves in three bands. Lace goes around hem and V-neck, too. Blue and white combine again in a long white flannel gown with prim, high neck blue throat bow, and little flaring cuffs from the elasticized wrist. Blue "embroidered" flowers and stems have been inmprinted over all.

One duster-length robe in quilted white nylon has the palest blue and pink butterfly bows at the buttonholes, and a baby blue quilted robe is dotted demurely with white and edged with lace.

In a complete different moode is another long gown, this one a straight, undulating shift in nylon tricot. It's slit to the knee, with a knee-height band of navy, then a swath of bright red for the middle, then navy again to make the high bodice. $8. A short nylon tricot shift is pink or blue, piped with white satin. $6

Raspberry, lemon or blueberry tricot makes the most dramatic short gown you could imagine, with long sleeves, deeply ruffled at the wrist, and a breathtakingly deep U neckline.

Chollege dorms, drafty places at times, will warm up if you wear a button front Sleep-Ease flannel in pink or blue floral print with snug yarn collar and friendly $7 price tag.

For slim sophomore tummies, Edith has a panty girdle in Lyrera for $5, white and blue nosegays. A Junior Olga has a lace front, and firm satin hip panels. Also among the dozens of girdles in the shop is a long-leg panty for girls who have weight and control problems. This one is good for heavy thighs under a narrow shift.

That stretch bra is here, all Lycra for $5.95, or cotton for $3.95, with wonderful "give" in straps that are too kind too bind.

Edith's tailored slip has a single white embroidered crown on the white nylon tricot (or a red crown on navy), and her dress slip has a deep lace slit hem. Wear it to chapel on Sunday. Comes in half slip and panty, too.

Now of course, if you really want to dress up, there are matching bras, girdles, slips and half slips in pinks, blues, reds and yellows.

"Princetonians In Washington"

LET US GATHER TOGETHER UNDER THE TREES: Although August 28 was warm in Washington, the shade was cool and there was a light breeze to fan the leaves. Three friends gathered under the shade to listen to the folk songs and to share the inspiration of the day. (Left to right) Harry Davis, the Rev. William Tucker and Sidney Davis.

A MINISTER AND TWO YOUNG HOPEFULS: The Rev. Kenneth Dannenhauer (left) of Princeton's Calvary Baptist Church, was one of the key figures in the Princeton "March" organization. Here, outside one of the buses at a Delaware rest stop, he chats with two young students from Princeton Theological Seminar, William Findlay (center) and James Laurie.

CLIMB ABOARD! On the long, five-hour ride to Washington, buses stopped once or twice for leg-stretching. A particularly popular stop was a giant bus terminal in Delaware, and it was here that most marchers got their first taste of what the Washington crowds would be like. Mel Scheinman climbs back on his bus after a coffee-break.

ON THE MARCH: This is "it," the March itself. Princeton leaders had hoped that all 250 Princeton marchers could walk together but the buses became separated en route and not even whole bus-loads marched together. Here are Mrs. Edward Schlinski (right, head turned) and her daughter, Julia, both of Rooseve', N. J.

MOONDOG AND I

Juilliard Was Never Like This. "It's a freakish, weird thing to have happen to me because it isn't in my line at all, but Moondog himself is substantial and not a freak."

The freakish, weird thing is that Suzanne Fremon, a gifted, blonde, etheral young classical pianist finds herself four nights a week serving as accompanist to a far-out street singer named Moondog. And the reviews have been good.

Miss Fremon, a 1957 graduate of Princeton High School and a 1963 graduate of the Juilliard School of Music, is perfecting herself for a career as concert pianist. She knew that there would be, as there always is for music school graduates, a time of limbo when one plays the organ in churches, gives piano lessons and works at whatever hard, practical jobs there are for gifted young pianists in a crowded world.

But she never thought there would be Moondog. She happened to be in the Juilliard placement office one day when Moondog called in, asking for a pianist trained in the classic tradition, and that's the way it began.

Moondog is a kind of Tiresias, a blind poet and seer who has been a street-singer in New York for many years. Tall and gaunt, with thick graying hair and beard that give him the look of John the Baptist, he strides about the city wearing a wine-dark canvas poncho and a stiff, angular hat whose beak is pulled low to protect his sensitive eyes from the light.

"He is really a figure," Miss Fremon says in awe.

First, the Drums. "Our act begins," Miss Fremon explains, "when Moondog gives a kind of invocation on the triangular drum he invented. He calls it a 'trimba'. It's part of a set of drums that includes a smaller trimba and cymbals—but those are mostly for resonance; he doesn't use them much — and an iron bar. He holds another iron bar and maracas in his hands, and he can really make all kinds of sounds."

Alone, or with his percussion or his poetry readings, Miss Fremon plays the strict canons Moondog has composed for piano.

"He uses melodies in the Baroque style," she says, "and modern melodies and harmonies as well, all very strong rhythmically. And intricate rhythmically! It took me days to catch on to the drum introduction and the first few notes I had to play."

Moondog's poetry is in couplets, most of them mordant and as tightly composed as his canons. For example, Miss Fremon mentions two that appeal to her particularly: "We were few and far between in pre-historic times, and we will be few and far between in post-historic times."

Another: "We grope with eyes wide open toward the darkness of futurity with faith in oulermost instead of innermost security."

A Touch of Success. "Our act takes half an hour, and we go on at midnight," Miss Fremon continues, "I can't very well compete with that Moondog costume, so I just wear a dark pleated skirt and a simple blouse and black flats."

"Moondog and I" has been on the boards of the Living Theatre since mid-July. New York "Times," New York "Post," Cue magazine and, of course, "The Village Voice" have recommended Moondog and Fremon, and audiences have been good, if not terrific, in the little theatre, which is about the size of Murray-Dodge in Princeton.

Miss Fremon respects Moondog as a person and as a musician, but she does not plan to do moondogging for the rest of her career.

She is a limber musician who can move easily from trimba to vox humana, and she takes the subway each Sunday from the far-out Living Theatre to the far-out Bronx to play the organ in a sober Dutch Reformed church.

She has already appeared in recital as accompanist for a young mezzo-soprano named Anna Koninsky, and the two young musicians (they met while at Juilliard) will give a series of Town Hall recitals this winter.

In addition, Miss Fremon is a piano teacher for children, and has been since she was a ripe old 17. Teaching is her main interest at this time, and she will begin this fall to teach young boys and girls in Princeton, (beginners, middlers and advanced) who want to learn

IS MOONDOG LIKE BACH? Well, sometimes, yes. But this is not Moondog. This is Suzanne Fremon, 311 Western Way, who is surprised to find herself, a Juilliard graduate, moving with the sandal-and-drum set in New York and playing the canonic music of a blind street-singer named Moondog. PRINCETONIANS HONORED

Books to be in White House. Among the 1,780 books selected for the new White House Library is a large number by past and present residents of Princeton. Thirty-nine of the titles, including the multi-volume Papers of Thomas Jefferson, were published by the Princeton University Press.

Dr. Julian P. Boyd, editor of the Jefferson papers and Princeton University historian, was a member of the committee which chose the books for the White House. Over 25 percent of the titles in the collection were published by university presses, which sell only one percent of the books in this country.

Eight other authors from Princeton and their works on the Princeton University Press list are Carlos H. Baker, "Hemingway, The Writer as Artist;" Arthur S. Link, "Wilson: Road to the White House," Vol. I; Herbert Feis, "The Road to Pearl Harbor," "The China Tangle," "Churchill, Roosevelt, Stalin," "Between War and Peace: The Potsdam Conference," and "Japan Subdued."

Also, Felix Gilbert, "To the Farewell Address: Ideas of Early American Foreign Policy;" George F. Kennan, "Soviet-American Relations;" Harold H. and Margaret Sprout, "Toward a New Order of Sea Power," Henry D. Smyth, "Atomic Energy for Military Purposes," and James W. Smith, co-editor, "Religion in American Life."

Dr. Abraham Flexner, first director of the Institute for Advanced Study, is included with his biography of Daniel Coit Gilman. Represented on the fiction side is the late Thomas Mann, who came to this country in 1938 at the invitation of Princeton University and lived here (the corner of Stockton and Library Place, now the Aquinas Foundation) for some 15 years.

The Rev. Jonathan Edwards, third president of the College of New Jersey, is the earliest Princetonian on the list. Alumni include James Madison, Philip V. Fithian, Philip Freneau, Benjamin Rush, Joseph Henry, Hugh H. Brackenridge, Woodrow Wilson, F. Scott Fitzgerald, James Forrestal, Norman Thomas, Edmund Wilson and Foster Rhea Dulles.

Chosen for the new library were "TVA: Democracy on the March" by David E. Lilienthal and "Public and Republic" by Alfred DeGrazia, both Princeton residents.

Present and former University faculty members included on the list are Robert G. Albion, with Mrs. Albion, "The Rise of New York Port;" Dr. Baker, "Hemingway and His Critics;" Thomas J. Wertenbaker, "The First Americans;" Dr. Sprout, "The Rise of American Naval Power;" Robert R. Palmer, "The Procurement and Training of Ground Combat Troops."

Jacob Viner, "Studies in the Theory of International Trade," William S. Myers, "The Hoover Administration;" Charles W. Hendel, "Studies in the Philosophy of David Hume;" Alpheus T. Mason, biographies of Louis Brandeis and Harlan F. Stone, Dr. Link, "Woodrow Wilson and the Progressive Era," and "American Epoch."

Edward S. Corwin, "The President, Office and Powers," Donald D. Egbert, "Socialism and American Life," Dr. Boyd, "The Declaration of Independence," and Lester V. Chandler, a biography of Benjamin Strong.

LIBRARY HAS FILMS

On Antarctic, Canada. The Public Library will lend films to individuals and groups from its monthly collection, made available through the New Jersey Library Film Circuit.

Among the new films for September are "Antarctic Crossing," on the Hilary-Fuchs' expedition, and "Ti-Jean Goes Lumbering," a French-Canadian folk tale. Those wishing information on the films should call Mrs. Grace Houghton at the Library, WA 4-9529.

DEMOCRATS TO MEET

For Campaign Planning. The Princeton Democratic Club will hold its first fall meeting next Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. in the Chestnut Street firehouse.

Candidates for Borough offices will discuss plans for the fall campaign, to be organized and directed by members of the Committee. Members may bring guests, and those interested in the Club are invited to attend.

Picnic for Funds. Saturday, September 21, is the date set for the Club's annual picnic at the Italian-American Sportsmen's Club. Nicholas J. Bartolino is general chairman.

The picnic, planned to raise campaign funds, will be held 4 to 7 p.m.

THE STUART TARTAN GOES TO SCHOOL: Students at the new Stuart Country Day School for Girls show their newly designed uniforms to Headmistress Mother Joan Kirby. At left, Susan Harford, 32 Mason Drive, wears a jumper of Thomas cotton in the Hunting Stuart tartan with white broadcloth blouse with roll sleeves and Bermuda collar. Little Jessica Fitzpatrick, of Trenton, shows the pre-school girls' red broadcloth smock with one large Pocket in the Hunting Stuart tartan and green corduroy slacks. At right, Jacqueline Broadwater, 65 Harrison Street, wears the lower school's white dress for special occasions which is made of fine wale pique trimmed with lace. (Ulli Steltzer Photo)

"A GODLY JOURNEY"

250 Princetonians March. "It's an ungodly hour but a Godly journey."

The speaker was a middle-aged white woman, still half-asleep because it was only 5:10 a.m., yet alert, aware, and full of anticipation for the long day ahead. (See page 11).

Six bus-loads of men and women, Negro and white, gathered in the pre-dawn at the Princeton Shopping Center on Wednesday, August 28, for the March on Washington. (Actually, almost 300 Princetonians made the march because some joined Trenton groups after the Princeton bus seats had all been reserved, some high-school boys hitch-hiked down and several went by train, gambling on time-tables to get them back to Princeton in case the railroad strike did indeed come off.)

About one-third of the Princeton marchers were Negro and the cross-section was an interesting one, for both white and Negro marchers. Some were elderly; men and women who had lived a lifetime under the shadow of discrimination, or who had devoted a lifetime to working with Negro friends to try and lift that shadow. Some were very young; teen-agers with a sense of dedication to a cause, or with that feeling of excitement that comes with the knowledge that your people are riding the wave of the future.

The Roll-Call. White riders and marchers came from everywhere, from Cleveland Lane, Edgerstoune Road and Edgehill Street, from the Shadybrook and Riverside sections and the Luecke, whose husband was out of town.

The Organization. The march from Princeton was sponsored and organized by the new (formed last May) Princeton Group for Human Rights. Under the guidance of the Rev. Mr. Cox and Malcolm Diamond of the Group, a closely organized, almost military system was blocked out to keep the 250 marchers intact.

A few days before the actual march, Mr. Cox and Mr. Diamond went to New York for a briefing with national leaders and found that the system they had already worked out themselves was almost exactly like the one suggested by national headquarters.

It was a system that began with a bus captain and his co-captain. Shortly after the buses left Princeton, the captain,

And ministers!

"You know, we have left Princeton without any spiritual guidance!" laughed Henry Drewry, bus captain, as he checked in Rowland Cox, Kenneth Dannenhauer, Robert Spears, Shelby Rooks, Albert Tyson, Walter Wagoner, William Tucker, Robert P Montgomery — and Mrs. Richard magaphone in hand, read out to his 44 passengers a detailed set of instructions.

Don't fight back if you are attacked . . . if you are the target of rotten eggs and tomatoes, don't look to right or left but march straight ahead, tall and with dignity . . . men should leave their pocket knives behind in the bus . . . don't answer hecklers, don't even look at them.

assigned to each leader a platoon of 10 followers. These "groups" were to be the cores around which marchers would cluster, and they were to remain together throughout the day. Each group was then broked down into "buddy" pairs, and the direst and most frightening warnings were given to any marcher who strayed off alone anywhere without his "buddy."

Inevitably, of course, the system lost its rigidity once the marchers had reached Washington; group leaders had made it rigid simply because nobody knew what would happen and the leaders believed it was better to be over-prepared than not prepared at all.

My "Buddy." The buddy system broke down first of all at the rest-room door, because even among marchers to Washington a certain minimal segregation is observed. And during the long day, various buddy pairs separaled from their groups, some to seek the shade, others to move closer to the fascinating bubblers that Washington police had attached to the fire hydrants.

So far as anyone can tell, only one Princeton marcher got "lost." He was Eric Marshall.

one of the teen-agers. Actually, he wasn't "lost" so much as just absorbed into the crowd. After frantic searchings and a phone call to the office of Senator Harrison A. Williams, it was discovered that young Eric had calmly returned to his bus.

Senator Williams had offered his office as sanctuary, and every Princeton marcher had noted its phone number on the white card given to each bus passenger. On these cards, each passenger wrote the name of the bus company, the color of the bus, its license and the street where it was eventually parked.

One of the bus captains giving out these instructions was Henry Drewry, school teacher for many years and a member of the Princeton High School history department. "After you have noted these things," he solemnly told his bus, "please write on the back of the card your name and home - room number!"

The High Points. Princeton's six buses were separated, almost from the start, but for each one there was the same, stinging moment of excitement.

It came in the first light of dawn, after the drive from the Shopping Center to the Hightstown Interchange of the New Jersey Turnpike. It was a lonely drive, that hour of the day, but suddenly, as the turnpike came into view, it was lonely no longer. As Princeton riders watched, bus after bus streaked south along the turnpike, and as each Princeton bus eased into that turnpike stream it became, for the first time, part of the great march.

Passing cars that tooted in friendly greeting, the people standing by the turnpike in southern New Jersey with placards reading "You Tell 'Em!", the incredible good-nature of the incredible crowds at the Delaware rest stop — minor, but memorable incidents.

For one bus, perhaps the most moving part of the day came early in the morning when Mrs. Elizabeth Perguason, Fred Phox and John Counts sang solos for their fellow passengers "I Want Jesus to Walk With Me," "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen," and "Deep River." From then on, there was singing all the way in.

On another bus, "Onward, Christian Soldiers," "Guide Me, Oh Thou Great Jehovah," "Battle Hymn of the Republic" — and from the teen-agers in the back of the bus, football songs! In every bus, of course, there was "We Shall Overcome."

Almost every Princeton marcher seemed to agree that the real heroine was Mrs. Ernest A. Lynton. Keenly anticipating the march, eager to go from the very first, she remained behind to babysit. The Princeton Nursery School had volunteered its facilities on the condition that a woman familiar with the school be in charge during the day. Mrs. Lynton had worked at the school, so she voluntarily turned in her bus reservation and stayed behind.

The Tally. The Human Rights Group received about 140 contributions toward the march, for a slightly preposterous total of $999. There were more contributions than expenses, and group spokesmen have said that they may decide to send the surplus to the national headquarters for the march, which is in the red. The six chartered buses cost $1,200, covered by each passenger's $5 ticket.

For all those who went because they wanted "to stand and be counted" (and all day long they stood and were counted) the day was a memorable emotional experience. The Rev. Kenneth Dannenhauer, interviewed by a New York "Times" reporter who singled him out of the Lincoln Memorial crowd, told the "Times" that he sensed a feeling of hope as the strongest current of the day.

The Rev. Albert Tyson commented that his bus passengers, most of whom had never seen one another before, became quick friends because they were involved in something unifying and important.

"To me, there was one symbolic thing about the march," said the Rev. Shelby Rooks, "you'll recall that it started spontaneously and ahead of time, and that the leaders had to run to catch up and get ahead of the marchers. This is highly significant, because it shows that leaders are merely responding to a tremendous groundswell of opinion and of feeling."

That skies will
All be gay,
On that first morning
Back at school,
They're uniformly gray.

The best qualified observers feel that the early weeks of September, beginning with the opening of the public schools on the 5th, will be cooler than "traditional." However, one forecaster insists — and loudly — that "we shall pay, and dearly, before the dawn of Indian Summer," whenever that is.

"PRELUDE" TO BE HEARD

Daniel Trifan Composer.

Prelude for Orchestra," by Daniel D. Trifan of Princeton Junction will be broadcast on tape this Saturday between 1 and 2 p.m. over WFLN, Philadelphia. The 11 year-old composer is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Daniel S. Trifan, who won their case against the State of New Jersey in 1961 to educate their three children at home.

Daniel composed and orchestrated the work last year, and the first performance was given on November 10 at the Academy of Music. This Saturday's tape is of the first concert last season in the Children's Concert series by the Philadelphia Orchestra. William R. Smith, assistant conductor, was the director.

The "Prelude" is the second composition on the program. At the time of its first performance last year, Mr. Smith stated that members of the Orchestra shared with him "a great excitement over this young talent."

Returning to Stephens College, Columbia, Mo., are Miss Priscilla R. Rogers and Miss Rosemary Aiken. Miss Rogers is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Rogers, 210 Shadybrook Lane, and Miss Aiken's parents are Dr. and Mrs. William H. Aiken, 87 Brookstone Drive. Classes begin September 16.

Kelly Girl Service Inc. has named Thomas J. Megonigal, 17 Burning Tree Lane, Lawrenceville, its Philadelphia district manager. The Service handles temporary employment of female personnel.

Mr. Megonigal will be in charge of offices in Philadelphia, Chester, Norristown (Pa.), Wilmington (Del.), Camden, Trenton and Princeton. He and his wife, Zula, have four children.

"YOUNG TALENT": Daniel D. Trifan, 11-year old composer, is here scoring his about-to-be-broadcast "Prelude for Orchestra." (See People in the News.)

KAUFFMAN RE-ELECTED

To Hospital College Board.

John W. Kauffman, administrator of Princeton Hospital, has been named to a second term on the Board of Regents of the American College of Hospital Administrators. A fellow of the College since 1954, Mr. Kauffman was first elected Regent of Region 4 in 1960. The region comprises New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Mr. Kauffman is a preceptor in the Hospital Administration Program of the State University of Iowa, Iowa City. Fletcher H. Bingham, who holds a master's degree in business administration from Iowa University, is serving as administrative resident at Princeton Hospital, while working toward a master's in hospital administration under the program.

John W. Kauffman

Acosta Advanced. Edward B. Acosta, assistant administrator of financial services, gained membership in the College following written and oral examinations. He was nominated in 1961.

Mr. Acosta, who came to Princeton Hospital in 1958, received his bachelor's degree in business administration from Pace College, New York, and served as assistant controller of St. Luke's Hospital, New York City. Walter A. Seligman, associate administrator of Princeton Hospital, was advanced to membership in the college in 1960.

The College was founded almost 30 years ago to recognize men and women for outstanding work as hospital administrators. The institution develops and promotes high standards in education and training, and leaders in the field serve as preceptors in university programs of hospital administration.

Mila Gibbons, director of the Aparri School of Dance and the Aparri Ballet, attended a five-day choreographic seminar at Keystone Junior College, La Plume, Pa. The session, sponsored by the North-

GOING BACK in Town Topics

FIVE YEARS AGO

September 4, 1958. The Borough's new acting police chief, appointed to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Chief John H. Smith, was Raymond Mondone. Officer Mondone had been a member of the police force since March 1928. A resident of Princeton for 50 years, the new chief had earned his sergeant's stripes January 1, 1946, and had become the department's lieutenant in 1956.

One of the most successful real estate promotions in the history of the town had created something of a traffic jam the previous weekend. A house, labeled a "storied Storybook Home" on Randall Road, had brought 2,000 visitors, plus children, to inspect its many innovations, including an indoor swimming pool.

Two of Princeton's volunteer firemen — and members of the Borough police force had received painful grease burns early the previous Saturday morning as they battled the second blaze in less than a year in a local smoke house. Sgt. Robert J. Anderson and Patrolman Russell Shangle had suffered their injuries when hose water, hitting a lard kettle, caused the hot grease to splatter on them.

Damages to the smoke house were estimated at "about $500," though they would have been much higher, according to the owner, if the firemen's quick work had not spared the hams. In the previous fire, the preceding winter, icy conditions had hampered the volunteers, many hams had been destroyed and total damages had been considerably more extensive.

'TOWN TOPICS' movie reviewer had this to say about the appearance at The Garden of Elvis Presley in "King Creole": "The film's title refers to Elvis, who in real life has gone into the Army and therefore won't be able to embarrass the screen with another such performance for two years. Come to think of it, maybe that's why the VistaVision is in blushless black-and-white this time."

TEN YEARS AGO

September 3, 1953. As in 1963, Princeton's major industry — education — was starting up once more, and by the end of the month nearly 12,000 students and teachers would be at work in classrooms and laboratories. TOWN TOPICS estimated that, with the arrival of the University's freshman engineers the following Monday, the community would undergo a "population explosion" of over 5,000, most of them students at the institutions of higher learning.

An analysis of students at Princeton High School made in 1953 indicated the unusual status of the school in terms of academic achievement. Over a four-year span, 1949-52, 82% of the graduates attending college had averaged C or better, with 43% in the A's and B's.

Also, a recent I.Q. analysis of the high school's enrollment had revealed that 0.1% of the students were in the Near Genius Group, 7% Very Superior, 24.4% Superior, 59.3% Normal, 0.7% Borderline.

Princetonians in early September 1953 were being plagued by a swarm of "Would You Takes," as they were called in the automobile trade. "Would You Takes" were postcards, in this case from an out-of-town automobile dealer, supposedly offering whopping prices to an owner for his car.

In warning townspeople of the gimmick, TOWN TOPICS said that "investigation of such practices frequently proves that deception awaits the potential buyer. Convictions of dealers for such fradulent practices are a matter of record."

IF YOU LIKE Town Topics, the best way to express your appreciation is to mention it to our advertisers.

COURTESY AND SERVICE: To Mrs. J. Taylor Fish, 560 Lake Drive, have gone top honors in the "Old Fashioned Courtesy Contest" sponsored by Pennington Ford. Seen here with Basil Stetson, president of Pennington Ford, and the prize, a Lenox China service for eight. Mrs. Fish defined "old fashioned courtesy" as "actually feeling the meaning of your actions and words from the point of view of others."

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

September 2, 1948. Melodramatic murder, with all its horrible and tragic implications, had come to Princeton the preceding Wednesday. Shot and killed: Joseph K. Watkins, of 293 Nassau Street, as he sat behind the wheel of his car in the driveway of the Princeton Inn.

Suspect (who subsequently killed himself): a former business associate, Henry M. Brooks, who owed Mr. Watkins a debt of $72,000. Aroused: this once "peaceful hamlet" which had now known three fatal shootings in a little more than three years.

A New Jersey bonus for veterans in 1948 appeared to be tabled for the time being because the legislature could not agree on a way to finance it. Plans included boosting the beer and gasoline taxes, or adding nine per cent to consumers' electric bills. Methods such as sales and income taxes were "still to be debated but will not take effect in '48."

A small Princeton girl was proudly shown a picture by her grandfather, a retired Navy captain, of a gala day when royalty came aboard his ship and he was trimmed in dazzling white. She commented with a mixture of admiration and envy. "Oh, Grandpa, I never knew you were a popsicle man."

BUSINESS In Princeton

HERE THEY COME

Pro Game Brings Business. When 45,000 people descend upon a small town, they bring with them a lot of noise.

There is the roar of the crowd. There is the honking and swearing of drivers stalled in mile long traffic jams. But, amid the cacophony, there is one soothing sound: the ringing of cash registers as the crowd goes about assuaging its hunger and its thirst.

"Pro vs. Ivy." Because of a fundamental difference between a pro and an ivy crowd —the ivies bring their own liquor and visit their own after the game; the pro crowd has to rely on the facilities of the town—the chief benefactors of the pro crowd are the liquor stores, taverns and restaurants in town. Last year, Princeton's first professional football crowd left many bars and restaurants here stripped clean in its wake.

Said one tavern owner on lower Nassau Street, "It was tremendous; I made more in that one day than I normally make in a week. It was mostly a beer crowd and a lot of gin. Very good drinkers and heavy tippers. They're real sports. They were here for a good time. It was tremendous."

Beer by the Yard. This particular owner has just recently installed a new freezer to handle an additional 200 cases of beer. Another Nassau Street liquor store proprietor reported that his sales were up considerably that day, mostly beer sales. "It was strictly a beer and whiskey crowd. No scotch, no bourbons, no gins." (The Princeton University football crowds are strictly scotch and bourbon buyers)

A third tavern owner reported that he had not run out but only because he owned a walk-in cooler which contained 1,000 cases of beer. "The pro crowds, as a rule, are good drinkers." he said. "They sat in the sun all afternoon and were pretty well parched. Instead of getting in their cars and driving home, they wanted liquid refreshment."

"Space for drinking in town is pretty well limited as far as bar space goes. You put 100-150 people in a bar and it looks like a big crowd and if the place only has 20 cases on ice it is going to run dry pretty quick."

Oddly enough, the liquor stores located in the upper end of town did not share in the extra business. Said one, "We didn't get much of it. They didn't get up to Palmer Square. Most of them didn't even know where Palmer Square was." Said another in the same area: "We didn't get much of it. Most of them were looking for bars and a place to eat. There must have been at least 50 in here asking where there was a place to eat."

"YOUR CREATIVE ABILITY may surprise you," says Lee H. Bristol. "You may find yourself able to talk like that cousin of a friend of mine who took up cooking late in her career. 'I rather dreaded it,' she said, 'until I found out how much the fire does!' "

Restaurants Ready. The restaurants in town are prepared this year. The Annex reports simply that it is going to be ready. Last year, the manager said, "we ran out of everything."

The Nassau Inn reports that it intends to open its Prince William Room, a spacious private banquet room, to the public as an a la carte dining room. The Prince William Room can accommodate over 250 diners. Another "Nass" bar will be set up in addition to the facilities of the Tap Room, Coach Room and main dining room.

To serve the expected crowds, the Princeton Inn will open its dining room at 5:30, an hour earlier than the norm. Luncheon will be served a half-hour earlier at 12 noon. For dinner last year the Inn served 639 persons "much higher," it said, "than usual."

A WINDPROOF MATCH

And Other Problems. The New York ad agencies' old joke, "Let's put it on the New Haven and see where it gets off," is due for a Princeton twist.

Nearly 40 business men will engage in a "Creative Problem-Solving Institute" this Friday at Westminster Choir College.

"I suspect we all attend meetings where about five percent of the time is devoted to suggestions and 95 percent to discussing why the ideas won't work," says Lee H. Bristol Jr., president of the College and also of the Creative Education Foundation.

"The key to creative problem-solving is to temporarily suspend all criticism." During this period, free-flowing group imagination stimulates an enormous quantity of ideas.

The pragmatic tests of cost and time are applied in the second phase.

The Institute, co-sponsored by Westminster Choir college and "New Jersey Business" magazine, is a follow-up on a management seminar held on the campus last year. A $50 fee for the all-day session is earmarked for the college's scholarship fund.

"It is our plan," Dr. Bristol says," to describe blocks to creativity, techniques in prob-

SMOOTHING OUT THE KINKS IN ALEXANDER ROAD: At the foot of Alexander Street in Princeton Township and extending across Stony Brook and the canal to Alexander Road in West Windsor Township is an ancient series of four 90° turns dangerous enough to scare the most intrepid driver. This Little Le Mans will soon be no more, as the aerial photo, taken last week, shows. On the West Windsor side of the line, the contours of the much gentler new curves are already bulldozed. On the Princeton side, Township Committee is still awaiting acceptable bids.

WASHINGTON POLITICS

"Sobering Experience." John Stein, Yale undergraduate and son of Professor and Mrs. Harold Stein, 7 Greenholm, was one of four interns absorbed this summer in to the working day of the Washington office of Representative Frank Thompson Jr.

"Unlike most Congressmen," Mr. Stein says, "he allowed us to sit in on 'think sessions' in which he and his colleagues mapped strategy to help pass important legislation. This gave us an unusually close look at the real behind-the-scenes struggles in the legislative process."

The interns were encouraged to attend sessions of the Judiciary Committee, which was working on the Civil Rights bill, as well as other committee sessions. They took part in seminars led by Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, Senator Barry Goldwater, Teamster President John Hoffa and others.

Day-to-day work included drafting answers to constituent letters ("This gave us a revealing look at the issues of intesest in his district"). The interns addressed envelopes for the congressman's questionnaire and worked on special projects, ranging from research on a "Republican senator mentioned as a presidential candidate" to tabulation and analysis of voting trends in Mercer and Burlington counties.

Mr. Stein, whose father is professor of public and international affairs in Princeton University, researched the liberal strategists. Mr Thompson among them, who participated in the labor reform battle of 1959.

In Washington at the same time was Linda Johnston of Princeton, a Beaver College student, an intern working for the Special Sub-Committee on Labor chaired by Representative Thompson.

"I think we are all a little more politically sophisticated," Mr. Stein sums. "Working on the political firing line is a sobering experience."

MAN BURNED TO DEATH

Blaze Follows Explosion. A migratory worker died last Friday in Princeton Hospital as a result of burns which covered 90 percent of his body. The burns were caused by a fire at his home the preceding night.

The worker, Willie Stokes, 56, was carried from his burning house on Canal Road off Alexander Street by two other migrants. They broke into the locked building after hearing an explosion which set the structure on fire.

State police said that the blaze, first reported at 10:50 p.m., started when a match which Stokes had lit ignited fumes leaking from a bottled gas container. The explosion and fire followed.

Firemen from the West Windsor and Dutch Neck volunteer companies fought the blaze, but the building was totally destroyed. Stokes was taken to Princeton Hospital by Eugene Lowe of Canal Road.

Stokes was employed at the Mount farm on Route 1. Homes for the migrant workers are located at the rear of the farm property on Canal Road.

TWO WOMEN INJURED

On Way to Shore. Two Princeton Township women were injured August 14 when the car in which they were traveling was in collision with a truck loaded with 27 tons of sand. En route for a day's visit at the New Jersey shore, the women were struck at an intersection in New Egypt.

The driver of the car, Mrs. [illegible] of Cedarview Drive, received a broken rib and broken collar bone. Her passenger, Mrs. Ashley Montagu, 321 Cherry Hill Road, sustained a severe concussion of the head when she was hurled from the front seat to the rear seat. Mrs. Dreifus' Cadillac was a total loss.

Both women were taken by ambulance to St. Francis Hospital in Trenton where each remained a week. Later, Mrs. Montagu was transferred to Princeton Hospital for further treatment. Both are now recuperating at home.

OFFICIALS CONFERRING

At Building Institute. The Building Officials Association of New Jersey is holding its first annual Institute at Princeton University's Engineering Quadrangle this week. Arthur T. Brokaw, Borough engineer and building inspector, is director of the Institute. He is second vice-president of the Association.

Planning and physical arrangements for the Institute were handled by Charles L. Taggart, University Conference director.

Joseph C. Elgin, Dean of the School of Engineering and Applied Science at the University, welcomed the officials. Bernard Glover, Borough superintendent of buildings, participated in a panel on office procedures.

Alexander W. Keer of the University will conduct a tour of the new Quandrangle. At the Friday session on standards, testing and basic technical subjects, Professor Norman Sollenberger, Chairman of the University's Civil Engineering Department, will discuss his part in the structural design of the New Jersey World's Fair building.

Professor Hans F. Winterkorn of Princeton University will speak on the fundamentals of materials. At the Saturday banquet, Raymond F. Male, State Commissioner of Labor and Industry, will present certificates to the participants.

LEARN ABOUT ANTIQUES

Classes to Start the 26th. Lester M. Slatoff, auctioneer, will again offer two courses in antiques under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of Princeton Hospital. Classes will be held Thursdays from September 26 through December 5 except on Thanksgiving.

The beginners, who will meet from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at First Presbyterian Church, will study methods of identifying various woods, furniture periods, antique silver, china and glass. Emphasis will be placed on detecting the difference between antiques, fakes and reproductions.

The historical and artistic [illegible] of various antiques will be covered. Mr. Slatoff will discuss samples brought in by students for appraisal, and identification. Last year, a silver tankard was judged the finest example of its kind and valued at about $5,000.

The advanced course will cover Oriental rugs and porcelains, figurines, paper weights, silver, glass, china as well as analyzing furniture from New England, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. Classes will be held from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, also at First Church.

The fee for each course is $25 and should be mailed to Mrs. Porter Nalle Lea, Province Line Road. Reservations may be made through Mrs. Lea at WA 1-6916.

BETTER JOBS IS TOPIC

Of Byrd Fund Tea. An "Opportunity Tea" is scheduled for Sunday, September 8, at 4 by the Elizabeth Taylor Byrd Fund committee at the Mount Pisgah A.M.E. Church, Witherspoon and Maclean Streets. Professional men and women from the Princeton area will discuss preparation for careers and opportunities for better jobs.

Parents and children in grades 6 through 12 are invited to the tea. The fund committee plans to award an annual scholarship to a Princeton High School graduate, beginning in 1964. Miss Virginia Euell is chairman of the scholarship fund.

Mrs. David Taylor is in charge of the program for the tea. Other members of the fund committee are Mrs. Alexander Hoagland, chairman; Mrs. James Briscoe, Mrs. John Brown, Mrs. Frederick Burrell, Mrs. Floyd Campbell.

Also, Robert Ellis Jr., Mrs. George Geary, Mrs. Raymond F. Male, Fred Porter, James Ward and Mrs. Robert Wright.

home cleaning for carpet that can be done by the homemaker? How often?

On wool I recommend only a dry powdered cleaner. Follow the directions and it does a good job. However, shampooing a wool rug should be done by a good prolessional cleaner.

On nylon or Acrilan you can use the powdered cleaner but the liber producers say use detergent and water.

How olten a rug is cleaned depends on trallic and the soil conditions. When it begins to look soiled to you, bring its life and looks back with a cleaning.

Advocates of Early Breakfast

To the Editor of Town Topics:

We veterans of the early breakfast are convinced beyond cavil that Princeton badly needs a cafeteria. We would prefer that it sacrifice sound and decor for comfortable table-eating and serve good, reasonably priced food with alacrity.

CARMEN FASANELLA
MULFORD COLEBROOK
230 Moore St. Princeton

Editor's Note: Memories of "The Hall", for long years the haven of "veterans of the early breakfast", linger on!

"Propaganda?"

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Please don't give us propaganda for factual stories. This is still America you know.

Even in a give-away paper, one's opinions should be so state[illegible] printed as factual and [illegible]ading news.

PRINCETON READER
Princeton, N. J.

Editor's Note: In printing this charge from an anonymous reader-writer, TOWN TOPICS is for the first time in memory departing from its long-established policy of not printing unsigned communications. However, this is such a serious and disturbing charge that the Editors have opted to print in the hope that this critic will drop the cloak of anonymity and will set forth the specifics in which his accusation is rooted.

A Word of Praise.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I was very pleased with the way I was quoted in last week's paper. It came out just the way I meant it.

I hope the reporter noticed the E.R.C. girls, i.e., women's, softball team did better the last game—didn't win but lost by less.

MRS. THORNTON READ
350 Franklin Avenue
Princeton, N. J.

Editor's Note: The reporter-in-question, Assistant Editor Preston R. Eckmeder Jr., in his capacity as TOWN TOPICS' Sports Editor keeps a watchful eye on "the girls"—i.e., the women's softball leagues.

Street Sign in Error.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

While criticizing (facing on "The New York Times" this week, you mention a "cartographer's fiction," when their map showed Washington Street where Washington Road has always been. Obviously, "The Times'" cartographer was misled by the sign reading "Washington Street" which is placed on the old chemical engineering labs at the corner of Washington (?) and Nassau Street.

Perhaps the current demolition fad will settle the point.

JAMES M. HEATH
Houston, Texas.

Editor's Note: Mr. Heath should take pride in his ocular acuity. There is indeed an old and incorrect sign which reads "Washington Street" on the building he mentions. There is also, however, a new, correct "Washington Road" label on the sign on the other side of the street and at other intersections. All official maps and guidebooks refer to "Washington Road." TOWN TOPICS' writer of the article, who has been a Princeton resident for nearly 50 years, has never heard it called "Street," doubts that "The New York Times'" cartographer came to Princeton to draw the map, still thinks of it as a bit of mapmaker's madness.

Tax Credits Clarified

To The Editor of Town Topics:

A recent issue contained brief descriptions of proposed amendments to the State Constitution, to be presented to the voters on November 5. May I help to clarify the amendments involving tax credits to veterans and to property owners over 65?

Your article stated the amendments would "reduce" veterans' credits from "$500 a year to $50" and property owners' over 65 credits from "$800 a year to $80."

Actually, the amendments will provide a change in the method of giving the tax benefits, the purpose being to eliminate the disparities in the actual values of the credits occasioned by the wide range of assessment ratios existing in the many taxing districts throughout the State.

Presently, the amounts of $500 and $800, where applicable, are deducted from assessed valuations. If the amendments are approved, the sums of $50 and $80, where applicable, will be deducted from the tax bills of the owners involved.

Whether the actual value of the credit is increased or decreased depends upon the ratio of assessment to market value in each taxing district, and will of course result in an equalization of the actual value.

CHARLES E. FARRINGTON
180 Nassau Street

Editor's Note: The Editors greatly appreciate Assemblyman Farrington's clarification of the proposed Constitutional Amendments bearing upon tax credits to veterans and property owners over 65.

Plea for Foreign Aid Program

To the Editor of Town Topics:

It is evident that there is a determined effort being made to cripple the foreign aid program. The League of Women Voters, which has consistently supported economic aid to developing countries, urges support of the full amount requested for the Foreign Assistance Act of 1963 — especially funds for the Development Loan Fund, Alliance for Progress and U.S. contributions to international organizations.

The attempts to reduce the U.S. contributions of $136,050,000 to international organizations, which, I believe, is less than the cost of one combat-loaded Polaris submarine, seems shortsighted when these amounts are more than matched by funds from the recipient countries. The program is not a give-away. Approximately 80% of the funds is spent in the United States for goods and has helped to produce our favorable balance of trade.

Several Princeton residents have made outstanding contributions in the field of international development. Recently James Watson left Princeton to assume a position in Peru under the Alliance for Progress program.

Most of us cannot make a direct personal contribution, but we can all write our Congressmen urging them to recommend that the full amount requested for the economic aid features of the Foreign Assistance Act be supported.

Kislak, Inc.; James L. Macwithey, Bristol-Myers Company, and Alex F. Osborn, Creative Education Foundation.

Dr. Bristol became a convert to brainstorming through Mr. Osborn, founder of the advertising firm of Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn. The system employed at BBD&O burst into national prominence during the 1950's, and since then, has developed "a groundswell of interest," as Dr. Bristol says, in the field of creative thinking.

The brainstorming groups find greatest success when working in units of six to ten people, always including some rank amateurs who know nothing about the field under discussion.

Some groups work from a clear statement of the problem, which may be a new way to park autos in a crowded city. Others are introduced to the parking problem with the suggestion that they think of ways of storing things — and then are subtly guided into the specific problem.

After this session, the dozen or so hot ideas filtered from the mass are subjected at a later time to cold and practical evaluation.

"You can't make a person any more creative than he is," Dr. Bristol notes, "but you can help him realize his fullest potential." He adds that a food chain executive told him that "we look on such courses as an ideal way to accustom junior executives to expressing their ideas to others."

He sums up by quoting Dr. Herbert True, former Notre Dame faculty member, "The ideal labor contract is yet unwritten. A windproof match, an airtight bottle cap, a lifetime lead pencil are all yet to be conceived.

"The best way to train salesmen, an easy way to keep slim, a better way to pin diapers — all of these problems are unsolved. No one product has been manufactured, distributed, advertised or sold as efficiently as it should be or some day must be. In short, what we need is creative rearmament."

Person To Person

Cory S. Kammler

An acquaintance told us about a large sign he saw at the entrance of a U.S. military eslablishment, which read, "Peace is our Profession," and he said it started him thinking about all the truth in those four words. He said deeds rather than words are the proof of the real meaning of a person's or a nation's words, and that all our national deeds of the past and present prove that Peace IS the Profession of our armed forces. Not once in our national history have we initiated a war, struck the first blow. It has invariably been when we weren't carrying a big stick that potential enemies decided they could be victorious enemies, and we were then forced to protect ourselves. And we are sure that an "ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," so everything we do for you is first and foremost to prevent any dissatisfaction ever arising. Total satisfaction is our positive guarantee to you. Kammler Buick-Pontiac Co., Route 206, opposite Princeton Airport, WA 1-2222.

PRO FOOTBALL RETURNS

Giants Face Eagles Again. One of professional football's most traditional rivalries will unfold its second Palmer Stadium installment Saturday when the New York Giants and the Philadelphia Eagles return to Princeton for their final exhibition game prior to the opening of the 1963 season.

A sellout crowd of 46,000 is anticipated for the contest sponsored by the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce. The kickoff is set for 2 p.m.

Off their recent mastery of the Philadelphia entry in the National Football League's Eastern Conference, and particularly on a basis of the relative finish of the two teams last year, the Giants are favored to repeat their 1962 triumph here. They won a year ago, 27 to 10, and went on to raise their number of consecutive triumphs over the Eagles to six by defeating them twice in regular season play.

By the third Sunday in December, the Giants had posted a 12-2 mark in earning a second straight Eastern Conference title. Philadelphia, on the contrary, had slipped from first place in 1960 all the way to the league basement in 1962, winning only three of its 14 games.

Exhibition Records Spotty. Neither of Saturday's contestants has come blazing down the exhibition trail. The Giants' best August performance was a 24-21 victory over the Detroit Lions, who have been picked here and there to replace the Green Bay Packers as Western Conference champions in 1963.

Sandwiched around that triumph, however, were losses to the Chicago Bears and the lightly - regarded Minnesota Vikings. On Labor Day, the Giants lost to Green Bay for the fifth time in the last four years — counting exhibition, regular-season and championship games. It was a 24-17 final.

The Eagles were topped by the Baltimore Colts and the Pittsburgh Steelers in exhibition games this season before recording a clear-cut triumph over the Washington Redskins. Last weekend, they raised their pre-season mark to .500 with a 34-27 defeat of the Vikings.

On view Saturday will be two of the NFL's best passing quarterbacks, the Giants' 36-year old Bald Eagle, Y.A. Tittle, and the Eagles' Sonny Jurgensen. Tittle last year tied one league record when he completed seven touchdown passes in a single game against

MR. TOUCHDOWN: Y. A. Tittle of the New York Giants, generally acknowledged to be the best passing quarterback in professional football, will direct the Giant attack in Saturday's Jaycee Football Classic at Palmer Stadium.

Washington and set another when he completed 33 TD tosses during the season. The Jurgensen-to-Tommy McDonald combine has been called pro football's best passing battery.

If the Giants are at full strength, they may use simultaneously a backfield whose combined age totals 135 years: Tittle, 36, newcomer Hugh McElhenny, 34; Frank Gifford, 33; and Alex Webster, 32. Both Gifford and Webster, as well as Phil King, have been injured during the early action this summer, as have a couple of key linemen. Those not in top shape will likely be held out to insure their availability for the Giants' key opener against the Colts a week from Sunday.

Among Tittle's favorite targets are Del Shofner, whom Tittle says is the best receiver he has ever had in his 16 years in the NFL; Gifford, Joe Morrison, Joe Walton hand, Aaron Thomas. On offense, the interior line shows the massive Roosevelt Brown and Jack Stroud at tackles, Bookie Bolin, a second-year standout, and Darrell Dess, guards, and Greg Larson, veteran guard, moving to center to succeed the retired Ray Wietecha.

Despite traditional anonymity, the Giants' defensive lineup is studded with names familiar to pro football fans. Up front, the "Big Four" consists of Andy Robustelli, Jim Katcavage, Dick Modzelewski and John Lovetere, the latter a 280-lb even-up trade from Los Angeles for Roosevelt Grier. The veteran Sam Huff anchors the linebacking trio, while the starting defensive backfield consists of Dick Lynch, Erich Barnes, Jimmy Patton and Allan Webb.

Eagles Have Problems. Beset with more than their share of injuries last fall, the Eagles weren't half-way through the exhibition season when Clarence Peaks, one of their top backs, was lost for half the 1963 campaign with a broken elbow. Another big gap to fill is at middle linebacker, where the seemingly ageless Chuck Bednarik played for 11 years prior to his retirement last winter.

The Jurgenson-to-McDonald combine was good for ten touchdowns last season, but the Eagles lacked a ground game. Saturday's action will find them depending largely on Timmy Brown and Ted Dean, the latter a power runner attempting a comeback after being shelved most of last season with a foot injury. In addition to McDonald, the highly-capable Pete Retzlaff is a fine pass receiver.

Defensive difficulties, too, plagued Coach Nick Skorich's team last fall. End Bill Quinlan, late of Green Bay, will help, and a promising 250-lb. rookie, Ray Mansfield of the University of Washington, may fit into the picture, but the Eagles figure to have to score often to stay even in many a game this year. An asset is the return intact of the defensive backfield: Don Burroughs, Jim Carr, Irv Cross and Ben Scotti.

A wide-open, toughly-contested game is in store for Saturday's capacity crowd, with the Giants' superior skills and depth likely to provide them with an eventual margin of upwards of two touchdowns. The final exhibition game borders on the play-for-keeps season, and an upset by the Eagles would result in a wholesale revaluation of the probable NFL standings for the upcoming campaign.

TEAM BEHIND THE GAME

Jaycees Do It All. As sponsors of the first professional football game held in Princeton last September, the New Jersey Junior Chamber of Commerce was in charge of virtually every phase of the contest — from initialing it to handling ticket sales, parking, vending, selling programs and souvenirs — everything but ushering.

Comprised of some 7,000 young business and professional men in 164 chapters throughout the state, the Jaycees were not ones to let such an oversight slip by. Thus, when the New York Giants and Philadelphia Eagles visit Palmer Stadium on September 7 for their second visit, the Jaycees will serve as ushers, too.

Among the 1,200 Jaycees who will be on hand to run second annual Jaycee Football Classic will be a Newark lawyer selling hot dogs; a Summit bank teller directing traffic; a Newton druggist selling tickets; a Trenton clothier ushering; a Metuchen chemist peddling pennants and souvenirs, and Princetonians doing a lot of everything.

All of this labor is directed toward raising funds for charity. The Jaycees believe that "service to humanity is the best work of life." In pursuit of this belief, they were able to attract 44,966 people to the

Springdale Golf School Keeps Juniors Swinging

One of the most successful, and most constructive, programs in Princeton during the summer months has been the 30-pupil golf school for youngsters at Springdale Golf Club. Headmaster and faculty has been Springdale assistant professional Al Niederlitz, who has supervised a special program every Tuesday, including three tournaments, for the potential Arnold Palmers and would-be Mickey Wrights.

FIRST LEARN THE FUNDAMENTALS: Al Niederlitz carefully shows Billy Boone the correct overlap grip. Billy, 11, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Boone and is a sixth grader at Community Park School.

NEXT IT'S PRACTICE, PRACTICE, PRACTICE: At right, Pam Orr, 11-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Orr Jr., swings at a ball on the practice tee. Janice Tumber, also 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy C. Tumber, shows near-perfect form in addressing the ball prior to backswing.

THEN IT'S MATCH PLAY ON THE COURSE: Johnnie Richards, 12, watches as Bobby McCarthy, 13, deftly explodes out of a trap. John, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Richards is in the ninth grade at Community Park. He says he shoots in "the late 50's and early 60's." Bobby, eighth grader at St. Paul's and son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. McCarthy, is Springdale Junior Champion.

first Jaycee Classic and to raise more than $120,000 for charities.

At first skepties were appalled, by the size of the project. But they joined in the work after Jerome Burke of East Orange, the Jaycee who was the chief instigator of the project, was able to get officials of the Giants and the Eagles to agree to the proposal Princeton University officials agreed to provide the field without charge.

Last year, the Jayeees rang up some eye-opening statistics which they hope to top. They parked 7,364 cars, sold 24,972 hot dogs, and 44,000 soft drinks. All were records for Palmer Stadium.

LINE IS EXPERIENCED

(Second of three articles on the 1963 Princeton High School football team.)

10 Little Tigers Return. "We're stronger than last year; we have more experience. The boys have played together more which means a lot." "We're better off than we were a year ago, by far. Definitely."

These optimistic, unguarded comments were voiced by Dick Wood, head football coach at Princeton High School, and by Gerry Groninger, defensive coach for the Blue and White. Their subject the Little Tiger linemen.

Their rosy outlook is supported by the return of ten veteran linemen — all lettermen Wood could, if he so chooses field a starting offensive line with a letterman at each position. Defensively, PHS is strong at every position except linebacker. There, at the moment, the team is extremely vulnerable, according to Gronunger.

Unlike last year, when PHS was crippled before the start of the season by the unexpected departure of several key players, defections this year have been limited to one. But the loss of defensive Greg Van Doren was a tremendous one, according to Wood.

Of Van Doren, Wood said "He knew no fear when he was in there. He was so big that he could cover two or three positions at once." As a sophomore last fall, Van Doren measured 6-3½ and weighed 202.

Elsewhere, the Little Tigers are ready, with the exception of center. Here the Little Tiger line has its weakest link and it is this position that Wood will be working hardest to reinforce. Following, then, are the leading candidates for each position.

Right End. The "strong side" end must be a good blocker as well as a good pass receiver. Possessing these attributes is veteran Richard Daniels, the position's leading candidate. Over 6-0 and 187 pounds, Daniels is a fine blocker and had he not had the misfortune to play behind standout Jim Norris last year would be better known than he is. He is a senior.

Behind Daniels are three more seniors, all of whom will be called on to play more defensively than offensively. They are Roy Ballinger, Jim Boynton and Pete Webber. All three are lettermen.

Ballinger is, perhaps, the most outstanding. He is a superb defensive player and extremely rugged. When Daniels is out offensively, Ballinger will go in. Physically, Boynton is bigger than Ballinger and he should do well, Wood said, on defense.

PHS STRATEGIST: Gerry Groniger, defensive line coach for the Princeton High School football team, maps the defense. For more on the PHS line, see Sports in Princeton.

A guard last year, Webber is the biggest of the three at 195, 6-0, but a tendency to loaf has prevented him from fulfilling his potential. "He is capable of playing better than he has," said Wood.

Right Tackle. Wood says right tackle is the strongest position in the line, possibly in the entire team. Jim McKeever, who plays it, is a lead pipe cinch for future football stardom. He has everything he needs tremendous desire, ability, and size, 220, 6-2½. "I don't believe there is an ounce of fat on him," said Wood. McKeever is co-captain of the team. He'll play both ways.

Andrew Kully, the number two man behind McKeever, doesn't like the idea of being number two. One of three junior lettermen and the only returning junior lineman, Kully is determined to play. Wood agrees. "Kully's going to play. If not at right tackle, somewhere." Like McKeever, Kully will play both offense and defense.

Two others vying for the position are Jim Baer, a junior, and senior Nick Long. "Baer," said Wood, "is going to be good. He's very fast. I'd like to work him in on offense although we are definitely considering him as a linebacker as well."

Long didn't come out for the sport in his junior year, and is eager to see action as a senior. In fact, he's too eager. He starts fast, so fast, according to Wood, that he is easy to trap. "He goes in all bent for election and acts like a wild man in there." A more restrained Long, as solid as he is reckless, would be an asset.

Right Guard. Here there are three candidates — Jeff Lowe, a letterman and a senior, and juniors Ed Pomanski and Peter Brigg. At 210, Lowe is the heaviest and he is the most experienced. Briggs is about 175, and Pomanski, 185. "All three have good power. All three want to play and want to play badly," said Wood.

Center. Although not a letterman, Dave Bonner, a 165-pound senior, has the inside track at center because of his experience. Another candidate for this weakest of all positions is Mike Hawk, who came to PHS last year as a junior and who won his letter as a defensive player. A third is Jim Floyd who has shot up in height but who is uncertain in passing from the center slot.

"All you need is one or two bad passes from center in a game . . . ," said Wood. He added that he plans to work in Bonner and Floyd offensively and use Hawk, who at 200 has good size, defensively.

Left Guard. Two seniors and a junior, all equal in ability in Wood's opinion, are competing for this position. They are Greg Seitz and Peter Glatz, both 180-185, and Dante Langston, 175-pound junior up from the jayvee squad. Seitz performed well last year in the other guard position, while Glatz, who missed his junior year, has a lot of promise.

Left Tackle. The "running tackle" is an exhausting position. "Way above everybody else" said Wood, "is Sam Stewart." Though Stewart is an equally capable defensive player, Wood reported that, because there is so much running connected with the position, only in exceptional cases would he use Stewart both ways. A 185-pound senior, Stewart played the position last fall.

To spell Stewart, Wood is counting on two juniors, John Godshalk and Norman White, both up from the reserves. Lack of beef makes both a question mark, however. Neither is over 160 pounds according to Wood.

Left End. In the PHS attack, the left end or weak side end is required to do a lot of catching and blocking. It is an important position in Wood's plans. Yet, ironically, the best players for the position may be used elsewhere.

One of these is Larry Madden. Larry, co-captain of the Blue and White squad together with McKeever, wears three football hats. He is a fullback on offense, safetyman on defense, and a weak-side end last year. Larry spent about half of his offensive duties performing as an end.

Wood reported he plans to maintain the same ratio this year. "The position requires blocking, especially on the weak plays, and Madden did especially well at that," he said.

Princeton has to do a lot of weak-side running, Wood continued. "With Brooks in there (Brooks is an exceptionally fast wingback) I feel we can come around the weak side and this will help keep the defense honest. It will keep them from overshifting to the strong side."

If Madden serves best the one requirement of the position — blocking — then Jimmy Case performs the other requirement best — pass catching. Said Wood about Case, "Jimmy is a terrific receiver. If the ball is anywhere near him he'll get it. So we're going to have him learn end plays as well."

The thorn in all this is that Case is the team's best passer and the Little Tigers are in desperate need of a competent thrower. Somewhat reluctantly, Wood admitted that he couldn't expect a player to be able to catch his own pass.

A bright prospect for the slot is Pete Heiberger, a 6-1 junior with a good pair of hands. Heiberger didn't tryout for the team as a sophomore, but his speed (track sprinter) height, and sure hands (basketball) add up to the development of a fine end.

Behind Heiberger are senior Tom Waters and Bruce Tipi, a junior. Like Heiberger, the 6-3 Waters is a basketball player. Both he and Tipi, who Wood credits with possessing a good pair of hands, are about equal in ability.

RAW JUICES AND DIET
FOR THE ARTHRITIC
Cheerfulness and optimism are milestones on the road to recovery; but carefully selected raw vegetable juices and the proper diet will keep one there. As is true with so many other diseases, in practically all cases of arthritis, there is a history of vitamin and mineral deficiency in the diet. It is to remedy this lack that fresh fruit and vegetable juices are included in the dietary treatment of this ailment. ERC WINS PLAYOFF

In Business Softball League. ERC (Western Electriet) is the Cinderella team in the Princeton Business Softball League.

ERC won its fifth and sixth playoff games in a row last week as it defeated Electro Mechanical Research, 11-4, and 5-0, to win the League Playoff Championship. In winning the playoff, ERC will be awarded the TOWN TOPICS Bowl, a rotating trophy awarded each year to the playoff champion.

To retire the cup, a team must win the playoff title two consecutive years. Last year, when the cup was awarded for the first time, RCA was the recipient.

As played on the University's Pardee Field, the final game was a masterful four-hit shoutout registered by Dan Musinski. Musinski did not allow an EMR runner to get past second. He expanded on his role of hero by socking a home run and a single to win his own ball game.

Two days earlier, ERC had routed EMR in their first meeting, 11-4. Ed Paulson and Ron Cole connected for homers and short fielder Bill Feierabend was four-for-four as ERC batters stroked hit after hit. Once again, Musinski was the winning hurler.

For ERC, winning the playoff was the culmination of two weeks of playing superb ball under great pressure. A defeat in either of its first two playoff contests meant elimination. ERC's streak began at the end of regular season play when it and Columbian Carbon, American Cyanamid and Accelerator finished deadlocked for fourth place, the final playoff position.

In one-game series to determine the fourth place team, ERC defeated first Cyanamid and then Carbon. Behind the fine pitching of Jerry Pazdan, ERC picked up momentum when Pazdan led his teammates to two straight victories over Educational Testing Service in the semi-final round. Then as noted in the finals, EMR, which had finished first in regular season play, was overwhelmed by the rampaging ERC squad.

Team members for ERC include, Ross Morrone, 1b; Dan Brobst, 2b; Roger Cole, ss; Dan Machusak, 3b; Jerry Friedman, c; Bill Feierabend, short fielder; Bob Ochrle, rf; Ed Paulsen, cf; Bob Easton, lf; and Jerry Pazdan and Don Musinski, pit. Carl Valenti and Len Shaw served as manager and assistant manager.

Among the other teams in the league are Princeton Hospital, Scientific Electronics and RCA.

WILSON SCORES ACE

At Forsgate Country Club. William L. Wilson, of 225 Jefferson Road, scored a hole-in-one on the 200-yard seventh hole at Forsgate Country Club a week ago. Wilson, a member of Springdale Golf Club, was the first to make a hole-in-one on Forsgate's seventh, and it also was the first ace he had shot on any course.

course offerings, ranging from "Twentieth Century Painting and Sculpture" to "A Survey of the New Mathematics." The complete list will appear in the September 11 issue of TOWN TOPICS, and early registration is urged.

The school's open house is scheduled for Thursday, September 19, at the High School, where classes are held. Students may confer with instructors at that time, as well as register for classes. Since many courses have limited enrollment, however, registration prior to the 19th is advisable.

Art in This Century. Members of the University's department of art and archaeology will give the lectures in the "Twentieth Century Painting and Sculpture" series. All classes will run for ten successive Thursdays, excluding Thanksgiving.

The art course, which has no enrollment limit, is scheduled for 8 p.m. The classes, with illustrations, will cover trends and leaders from the Post-Impressionism period to the present, including Expressionism, Fauvism, Cubism, the 1913 Armory Show, Surrealism, Picasso after Cubism, and abstract painting and sculpture.

Swimmin' for Wimmin

Ladies, or even women, who do not know how to swim may learn how to do so by enrolling in a class at the YWCA.

The classes will be offered free of charge as a public service and will be held from September 9 through 13 from 9.30 to 11:30 a.m. Women who swim a little, but not very much, are also welcome to attend. Baby-sitting will be available for children over one year of age at a nominal fee.

Registration will be held at the Y next Thursday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"New" Mathematics. Parents whose children are studying "rithmatic" in Princeton schools may take a course in the new mathematics under Mrs. Mildred Goldberger, acting director of the Princeton Junior Museum. The material will include Cuisenier Rods and Stern Blocks, new textbooks and workbooks, and films of children working on the subject.

Among the topics for discussion are Set Theory for Kindergarten, Counting with One Hand — the Base Five Number System, Algebra before Arithmetic, and the Fifth Year of High School. Also slated for examination are needed changes in school organization and economies, discussions in the

Thanks for Coverage

To the Editor of Town Topics:

We were deeply gratified by the tremendous effort of the Princeton community that made our part in the "March on Washington" such a striking success.

The splendid coverage that we received in the local press was a very great help.

A "March In Princeton?"

To the Editor of Town Topics:

It was great to be alive and in Washington last Wednesday. Alive, because these are exciting times when more and more men are responding to the urgent call to get off the sidelines into the battle for human rights. In Washington, because of the surge of love and determination so clearly felt by the many responders present. Here was the public real estate of America being used in a dignified manner and for a proud purpose.

By comparison, my experience with private real estate in Princeton the two previous weeks was neither proud nor dignified. A friend — professional man, articulate, immaculate, possessor of a sense of humor, and — oh yes — a Negro, was hoping to rent a house in or near Princeton.

He was able to pay $225 a month, perhaps $250, which made him economically eligible. Recognizing that even houses in this category go quickly, a few members of the Princeton Housing Group thought they might assist him or support him if it were needed. It was needed!

Without making an elaborate attempt at documentation, there were at least three flagrant instances of discrimination. One was quite open. Yes, the house was for rent, but not for a Negro. In the second case, the present tenant took us aside and said, "You're wasting your time. He (the landlord) has already today refused to rent to a Jew and an Italian."

Finally, in between when my friend left a real estate agent's office and arrived at the house (she was too busy) the agent called the present tenants and said, "A Negro is coming to look at the house. Tell him it's been rented." This so upset the tenants that they offered to make public testimony if we so desired.

Let's be completely fair and state that many more real estate agents were courteous and helpful than in times past. But many are still afraid of being "labelled" or "worried about what others will think."

And this is the point of my letter. It is just about time that we let the agents and landlords know that there are many Princetonians who will support any constructive step they may take toward open housing. Or maybe we should have a March in Princeton!

"Save Thursday!"

The Princeton Association for Human Rights urges residents to "save next Thursday evening" for a follow-up meeting on the March in Washington.

Time and place will be announced in the next issue of TOWN TOPICS. The group will present its program for the coming months to the community.

WOMAN IS STRUCK

On Nassau Street. Miss Kathleen Smith, 67 19 University Place, was knocked down by a car last Wednesday afternoon as she attempted to cross Nassau Street. She was not injured seriously.

Borough Police report that both the motorist, Robert S. Holcombe, 21, of Lemoyne, Pa., and Miss Smith had a green light in their favor. Mr. Holcombe was turning onto Nassau Street from University Place. He told police that he did not see the victim until just prior to the moment of impact.

Miss Smith was taken to Princeton Hospital by the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad and admitted for observation. A week later, a hospital spokesman reported that she was still there, recovering from multiple contusions of the back and chest. Mr. Holcombe was issued a summons for failing to yield the right of way to a pedestrian at an intersection.

PINE TREE SHILLING

And Other Curios. The predecessor to "In God We Trust" on American coins was "Mind Your Business," found on the fugio cent, issued in 1787 by the United States.

This and other early coins and banknotes of the country are to be seen in photographic enlargements on display at the East Nassau Street branch of the First National Bank.

There are also actual coins on view, ranging from the rare gold half-dollar — almost pinhead in size — to the familiar "cartwheel" silver dollar, and including the octagonal California gold "slug."

Samples of the banknotes issued by some of the 8,000 banks which issued legal tender during the early 1800's feature such scenes as buffalo hunting, farming, steamboating and cotton picking.

The confusion caused by the private banks' paper money came to an end in 1863, when Congress passed the National Bank Act establishing a national currency.

NEW POST OFFICE READY

At Plainsboro. Plainsboro, which began postal service in 1848, will dedicate a new post office at 2:30 p.m. this Saturday. Officials of the Post Office Department and local postmasters are expected to attend.

The new building at 410 Princeton Road was constructed under the "Lease-Construction" plan whereby the government rents, rather than owns, property. According to Postmaster Raymond L. Sahl, this arrangement not only adds the building to the local tax rolls, but gives the Post Office Department flexibility in adapting to changing mail volume, transportation and population.

teaching of reading, writing and science, and the new set of problems in testing and evaluation.

Mrs. Goldberger is a Scholar at the Radcliffe Institute for Independent Study. She has worked with the Institute for Advanced Study, and during World War II, was associated with the Manhattan Project.

Recorder and Guitar. Beginners on the recorder may sign up for a two-hour session with Mrs. E.W. Lehmann, and a new class in folk guitar for beginners will be taught by Mrs. Yvonne Aronson. The guitar class will be small and is therefore scheduled to be repeated in the second hour.

Mrs. Aronson will teach students to "play by ear," to use strums, and to utilize the guitar as a rhythmic and harmonic accompaniment to folk songs. No previous musical training is required for either course.

Students without instruments should confer with Mrs. Lehmann or Mrs. Aronson at the open house on the 19th before buying a recorder or a guitar.

Parking Problem. The Adult School committee has asked students to form car pools on Thursday nights or to arrive as early as possible before class time to walk a short distance to the High School.

Legal parking in the lot is limited and attendance has greatly increased during the past years.

News Of The CHURCHES

FOR PARENTS ONLY

(Another in a series of brief articles directed to all concerned parents. Today's author is the Rev. Charles W. Marker, pastor of Princeton Methodist Church. Mr. Marker writes on "What Shall I Teach My Child About God?)

Believing Hearts. It is worth saying that we should teach our children to count on God.

The trouble is, our God is too small. We are impressed now by all the things we suppose he cannot do. Having fallen into a solution of our doubt and fear, he has come up shrunk so that those who wrote our Bible would hardly recognize him. They were impressed with how big he was and how much he could do.

He is the God who is able to make the weak brother stand, "to do far more abundantly than all that we ask or think!" He is the God who raised Christ from the dead, bigger than Nero or Domitian, stronger than all earthly powers, able to remove them from their thrones and to exalt those of low degree.

Though apostles and prophets may go into exile, God's purpose goes forward toward ultimate victory. He is able. On that triumphant note the Bible ends. It is the assurance and joy of believing hearts today.

Teach them also that we can count on him to remain God, however much we try to make him a household slave. We want him to give us peace of mind, without asking whether we have a mind, or whether such peace is consistent with the folly of our ways.

We want him to preserve our way of life without asking if it is worth preserving. Men once talked about man in the service of God; now it is God in the service of man. If we can only make him accessory to our plans!

Moral Law. Teach them, too, that because God is God, we can count on him to sustain his moral order, a reflection of his own nature. He has made the kind of world in which wars, for example, are the inevitable price of greed, selfishness, pride and arrogance.

In his world, racial injustice and economic exploitation produce disruption and decay. Immorality in his law-abiding world brings neurosis and disintegration.

Be sure to teach them that they can count on God's love, not his indulgence, but his love. Love that will not let them go, that seeks them even in judgement, more tender than the love of parents for their children, more constant than the love of husbands and wives for one another, undiscouraged by our moods and failures. Constant it remains.

He comes with love equal to all our needs. Coventry Patmore suggests it in "The Toys":

My little son, who looked from thoughtful eyes
And moved and spoke in a quiet grown-up wise,
Having my law the seventh
time disobeyed,
I struck him, and dismissed
With harsh words, and unkissed,
— His mother, who was patient, being dead.
Then, fearing lest his grief
should hinder sleep,
I visited his bed,
But found his slumbering
deep,
With darkened eyelids, and their lashes yet
From his late sobbing wet.
And I, with moan,
Kissing away his tears, left
others of my own;
For, on a table drawn beside his head,
He had put, within his reach,
A box of counters, and a red-veined stone,
A piece of glass abraded by the beach
And six or seven shells,
A bottle with blue bells,
And two French copper
Coins, ranged there with careful art,
To comfort his sad heart."

So we older people, buffeted by life, run away and surround ourselves with the symbols and trinkets which, we think, will heal our hurts. And God, with infinite compassion, sees these things in which we trust, knows they are not enough, and tells us that he understands. In summer and winter, in youth and in age, in failure and success, we can count on him.

Teach them these things not merely that they may know them, but that they may live by them. "Everyone then who has these words of mine and does them," said Jesus, "will be like a wise man who built his house upon the rock."

TRAVELING ON: The Rev. George Aase, who over six years developed Bunker Hill Lutheran Church, Griggstown, from a handful of families into a congregation of 140 (plus 153 in the church school), leaves on October 1 for an assignment in a home mission field of the Church of the Lutheran Brethren, South Minneapolis, Minn.

"THREE YEARS IN JAPAN"

Topic At Jewish Center. A housewife's three years in Japan will be recounted by Mrs Martin Steele at the first fall meeting of the Women's Division of the Princeton Jewish Center. The session is set for at 8:30 p.m. next Wednesday at the Center.

Mrs. Steele and her children, Michael 20, Linda 16, Jeremy 12 and Jonathan 5, accompanied her husband who was sent by RCA to set up the firm's Tokyo laboratories. Dr. and Mrs. Steele, residents of Princeton for eight years, live at 185 Clover Lane.

At Wednesday's "Welcome, Everyone" meeting, officers and chairmen will be introduced. Plans for the year are to be presented. Mrs. Simon Yaffee, division president, extends an invitation to interested members of the community.

BULLETIN NOTES

Missions Speaker. Miss Rachel Benefer, long active in the mission field, will address the Women's Association of Hillsborough Presbyterian Church at 8 p.m. Monday in the Log Cabin Chapel. As eastern area representative of the Board of National Missions, she links nearly 2100 United Presbyterian women's groups to the central office.

Fall Walloper. The first annual Fall Walloper of the Senior High Fellowship, First Presbyterian Church, is set for 6 p.m. this Sunday. All First Church teeners, including last year's seniors, will hold a cookout, embellished with games, singing and swimming. Food will be supplied by the Senior High Cabinet at 50 cents a person. Advisor Leslie L. Vivian (WA 4-3074) and Miss Billie Smith (WA 4-0103) are in charge of reservations. No rain date is planned.

Young Adults. Brock Putham of the Unitarian Church of Princeton was a committee member for the third Star Island (N.H.) College-age Young Adult Conference last week. Fifty young people held a week-long session centering on the theme, "Problems of a Democratic Society."

Across the Sea

When Raymond Male of Male's Book Shop, and former Borough mayor, went to England recently, he found a lonely ex-Princetonian.

The Rev. Harold J. Wilson, formerly of Trinity Parish, has just begun serving the Anglican church at Whitstable. He would welcome letters from Princetonians. His address is 48 Greystone Road, Tankerton, Kent, England.

Obituaries

Mrs. Elizabeth S. Bright, 85, died September 2 at her home, 25 Cleveland Lane. She was the widow of Howard Bright Sr.

Born in Reading, Pa., she was vice-president of Bright Stores, Inc., a member of Trinity Church, the Present Day Club, Monday Bridge Club and a former member of Springdale Golf Club.

Surviving are a son, George H. Bright Jr. of Lehighton, Pa.; two daughters, Mrs. Frances B. Gardner of Princeton and Mrs. Elizabeth B. Morgan of Montreux, Switzerland; 11 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The funeral service will be held at 2 p.m. this Thursday in the Marquand Transept of the University Chapel, the Rev. Dr. Robert R. Spears Jr. officiating. Interment will be in Princeton Cemetery under the arrangements of Mather Funeral Home.

Walter B. Foster, 78, of 16 Hawthorne Avenue, died August 28 in Princeton Hospital. He was the husband of Mrs. Helen B. Foster.

Mr. Foster was a member of the real estate and insurance firm of Walter B. Howe Inc. for 32 years, retiring in 1960 as vice-president. Born in Bay Head, he was first associated with the Point Pleasant National Bank and then with the Princeton Bank and Trust Co.

He was an elder of First Presbyterian Church, a Past Master of Princeton Lodge 38, F. & AM, a member of the Old Guard, the Rotary Club, and was a former member of Hook, Ladder and Chemical Engine Company. In 1937, Mr. Foster served as secretary to the Grand Master of Masons of New Jersey.

Also surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Walter C. Gibson of Princeton; two sons, Walter B. Jr., of Princeton, and Julius H., of Oak Ridge, Tenn.; two brothers, Julius Jr., of Bay Head and Samuel, of Longmeadow, Mass.; three sisters, Mrs. Roy Striffler of Bay City, Mich., and the Misses Esther and Ruth Foster, of Bay Head, and nine grandchildren.

A memorial service was held Friday at First Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Robert Wiemann officiating. Interment was in Princeton Cemetery under the direction of the Mather Funeral Home. Memorial contributions may be sent to the American Cancer Society, 88 Lakedale Drive, Trenton, or to National Kidney Disease Foundation, Inc., 143 East 35th Street, New York 16, N.Y.

The newly named officers of The Ladies Auxiliary of the Princeton Lions Club, which will hold its initial fall meeting Monday evening, September 9, at Lahiere's at 6:30, are Mrs. Stanley Cooper, president; Mrs. William Kiefer, vice-president; Mrs. Richard Katen, secretary; and Mrs. Douglas Watson, treasurer.

Julia P. Fremon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Fremon, 311 Western Way, a member of last June's graduating class at Princeton High School, is among the 15 entering freshmen (chosen from entering class of 585) who have been designated University Scholars at the University of Chicago. This is the highest honor bestowed upon entrance to Chicago. (Editor's Note: For additional news of the Fremon family, see page 12, "Moondog and I.")

The entering freshman class at Wells College, Aurora, N. Y., will include nine residents of the Princeton Area: Linda McAndrew, 235 Edgerstoune Road; Lucinda G. Allen, Long Hill Road, Neshanic; Sarah L. Cole, 131 King George Road, Pennington; Fiona Morgan, 84 Elm Road; Barbara Pearce, 8 Morven Place; Charlotte R. Raymond, Cherry Valley Road; Dorothea K. Shipway, Mt. Lucas Road; Barbara P. Brauer, 242 Ridgeview Road; and Carla K. Karlberg, 234 Lowell Avenue, Trenton.

Joseph J. Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Smith, 627 Kingston Road, is among the 256 freshmen who will be beginning classes next week at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn.

MARY GILL RETURNS

As Bellows Executive. Mrs. Mary Gill Reef has joined the staff of Bellows, 210 Nassau Street, in an executive capacity. She will assume her new duties in the immediate future.

Mrs. Reef closed her dress shop at 238 Nassau Street, next to St. Paul's School, early in July. She had conducted the business as "Mary Gill" for nearly 16 years. The wife of Martin Reef, sales manager for Turney Motors, her plans, she said, were to take things easy.

"But it is hard to watch the mainstream go by," and she says of Bellows, "I'm looking forward to this. I think it will be exciting!"

Lee Bellows, president-secretary of the firm, adds, "We're so delighted to have her."

CAN IT BE THE TREES?

Decidedly. Towering oaks and pines, majestic hickories, flowering dogwoods abound at Pine Knoll in Lawrence Township. The reason: this was a famous tree nursery and the trees will remain. The soil is rich, the terrain gently rolling, the elevation one of the highest in the state. Next door to the Green Acres Golf Course. An elementary school right on the grounds. A mile to Lawrenceville Shopping Center. Five minutes from Princeton and Trenton.

This perfect site attracted one of the finest custom home builders of Princeton. He is building these 33 homes with the quality and luxury features that are his trademark. Come out today. You'll stay!

MANY FEATURES USUALLY FOUND ONLY IN CUSTOM HOMES

Lawrence Township

WHAT ARE THOSE INDEPENDENTS TRYING TO DO?

We're simply striving for the return of honesty, impartiality and responsibility to the conduct of township affairs in Lawrence Township. Our effort is not a pre-election spurt of pretended interest and showy alarm-ringing it is and has been a continuing endeavor, of several years duration, to discharge the duties of a citizen awakened to the mishandling of his community's government.

. . . As such, it is the one thing that the powerful Mercer County political apparatus, which holds Lawrence Township and many other municipalities firmly in its grip, absolutely cannot tolerate. The "establishment" does not fear traditional political opposition—having highly developed ways for absorbing the man with angles, whatever his public political stripes may be. Citizens' movements are much more pesky things, but the power groups usually finds and confidently expects that by liberally endowing affairs with confusion, wordplay and lots and lots of delay, the citizens' activity will atrophy in due time.

The plain trouble with us is that we refuse to wither away and die on schedule! . . . How about joining us hardy specimens in the battle for Lawrence Township's present and future? After all it is your town as well as ours.

LITTLE BOYS AND BIG DOGS NEED LOTS OF ROOM

Children and their four-legged friends just can't be fenced in. They're not at Pike Brook Village. You get plenty of room In and around your home here.

Outside? A full acre (42,000 everloving sq. ft. of land) for stick chasing, and ball catching...for dog house and greenhouse...for a putting green and little league diamond.

Inside? 2100 sq. ft. of space. And that includes a recreation room for rainy day fun out of Mom's way... at least two baths (to avoid morning traffic jams) not to mention a full basement, a 2-car garage to hold assorted bikes, toys and whatnot.

Even the location caters to kids, their friends (and parents). There's a huge recreation center on the property for their favorite sport. The Pike Brook Country Club is just a stone's throw away! Express highways 202, 206, 22 and New 287 Freeway, together with the railroad, make sure Dad gets home In plenty of time to spend time with your "Little boy and big dog."

Any wonder Pike Brook is New Jersey's fore-most value?

NEAR HOPEWELL. 9 bedroom boarding house on 10 acres. Small cottage and several barn buildings. The land is on the hill immediately north of the Boro of Hopewell. This vacation and boarding house has been in operation since before World War I. Due to age, present owner is selling. The place was originally put on the market at $39,000. The price has been reduced to $27,000. The place needs some refurbishing and attention. This is a strategic location and much can be done with it. There is a good living here for the right party. Immediately adjoining land sells for better than $5000 per acre. There is no joking about this. Just check it. RENTALS. A few. Inquire.
